Northeastern . . . an educational giant flexing its muscles and surging ahead into the unknown . . . a powerhouse of progress that was too big for its cradle at its conception, too predestined to stand still . . . a cultivator of knowledge acting under the principles of light, truth and virtue . . . this is Northeastern, 1961.

From its infant beginnings the University has followed a two-fold plan of operation: Co-operative education by day coupled with adult education in the evening, enabling students with limited financial means to earn their way through college. After eighteen years of offering graduate studies, the Graduate School was formed in 1958 to swing the University's educational scope onto a further level.

Basic in the philosophy of Northeastern is the premise that free enterprise, individual initiative and the freedom to pursue the work of one's choice constitute the American way. Northeastern does not raise artificial barriers of race, color or creed, but evaluates a student on the fundamental bases of sound character and academic capability.

Physically, Northeastern has a lot of brawn and spaciousness to its name. Over twenty-one acres, with a quarter-mile frontage on Huntington Avenue alone, hold ten campus buildings and Kent Field, its dormitory sites extending further into the Back Bay and onto St. Stephens St., Hemenway St. and Marlborough St.

The University is eighteenth in size among approximately 1900 institutions of higher learning in the country, the second largest university in New England with an enrollment of over 20,000 students, while its College of Engineering has the largest undergraduate enrollment in New England, and is among the top ten engineering colleges in the United States.

Since its inception in 1951, the University's ROTC unit has sprouted into the largest voluntary Army ROTC unit in the country, outnumbering the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

Northeastern is the only co-operative plan university in New England in which the program is available in all its day colleges and the second college in the country to adopt the plan, sending its students as far north as Alaska and as far east as the Atlantic Ocean to assist in research and testing on Navy aircraft carriers.

This is Northeastern, 1961 . . . and you take with you its spirit, its power, its name.

DEDICATION

"A man always leaves the print of his personality on his dwelling place."
Dr. Carl S. Ell, President, Northeastern University, 1940-1959.

IT was a sturdy breed of flint and steel
That struck the spark, which, then assuming breadth
And motion generated into flames,
Became enveloped in a holocaust
Of knowledge, till their beacon-lights prevailed
And lit the darkened paths along his way.
The Yankee wisdom that imbued his mind
Was not so high and haughty as to shun
The wan realities of life, nor was
The sphere of ideality beyond
His grasp, but interweaving both, he sought
The middle ground, undaunted in the truth
That no sheer, man-made absolute can know
The all-embracing substance of its name.
Northeastern now is witness to the scene
Of youth and progress, sculptured into one
Within a mold of education; here
The destined stage is set, but greater still,
Far greater than the stage itself, the scene,
In witnessing the drama of the man,
Perpetuates his wisdom and his flames.
— Harold Bond

president's message

To each Member of the Class of [illegible]:

As you receive your copy of the Cauldron, may you remember with pride and pleasure your adventures in education at Northeastern University. Your Cauldron is symbolic of your educational achievement as a student.

Now that your relationship with Northeastern University has changed from student to alumnus, may your Cauldron also be symbolic of loyalty to your Alma Mater. As an alumnus of the Co-operative Plan of Education, you have been especially trained to meet the challenges placed before you with an open and inquiring mind.

I have every confidence that you will live up to the responsibilities you have inherited as educated men and women.

My best wishes for your future success,

Asa S. Knowles

If you'll remember . . . that fatal day was somewhere in September of '56, when, still a little wet behind the ears and with freshly-clipped sideburns, we walked out of high school and through the tree-studded quadrangle of Northeastern University, the first class to be admitted on the basis of College Board Exams. We were 1700 strong then.

Remember trying to find the Reading Room of the Library Building by taking a left at the swimming pool apropos to the insidious instructions of an upper-classman? Or your first jaunt, thermos bottle in hand, into the Commons? Or the half-dozen activities you naively joined the first week?

Before long the year's activities were under way. In the sports opener, Rhody remained true to tradition by edging Northeastern, 13-12, as Princess Shawnda, Regent Husky I, reigned for her second year as mascot. Jack Griffin won the first Mayor of Huntington Avenue contest by selling more five cent votes that the other six candidates.

Politically, the International Relations Club celebrated its silver anniversary and the History-Government Department election poll picked Dwight D. Eisenhower to win the fall election. And up in the NEWS office, more obtrusively, Mike Leonard was busy in his belated campaign to nominate Pogo for president.

The Silver Masque staged hit productions of "You Can't Take It With You", "Our Town", and "Kiss Me Kate", while Professor Raymond H. Robinson set a precedent with the first appearance of a faculty member in a Masque play.

The $1,800,000 Laboratory-Classroom Building (Hayden Hall) was dedicated in October. With the purchase of a Forsyth Street apartment building, the grounds of the University were increased to sixteen acres.

Dean Gilbert G. MacDonald was named successor to retiring Dean of Students Harold W. Melvin, while Math Professor, Christopher Kennedy, succeeded Dean MacDonald as dean of freshmen. In the pedagogic sphere, Professor Robert G. Wilfong was named head of the Government Department.

Professor Joseph Zabilski was offered a coaching position at Columbia University. Sports enthusiasts breathed easier when "Zab" refused the offer.

The Class of '61 established a record-breaking number of votes to put three coeds on the class board.

AFCEA members produced a movie for their annual convention. The military communications group was also cited as the outstanding chapter in the country.

Bo Lyons, Malcolm Hill, Frank Krypel, and Jack O'Connor were selected captains of the football, cross country, basketball, and hockey teams, respectively.

A bit hardened after the commercial wear and tear of a summer on co-op, we came back to Northeastern with the title of upperclassmen. Remember the empty feeling in seeing half of the class gone? And the superior, you'll-find-out feeling as the Class of '62 thronged the Quadrangle?

The football season got off to a turbulent start despite the normalcy of a 12-7 setback to Rhody.

"And he said, that she said, that . . ."

LOBSTER CLAW

Home away from home.

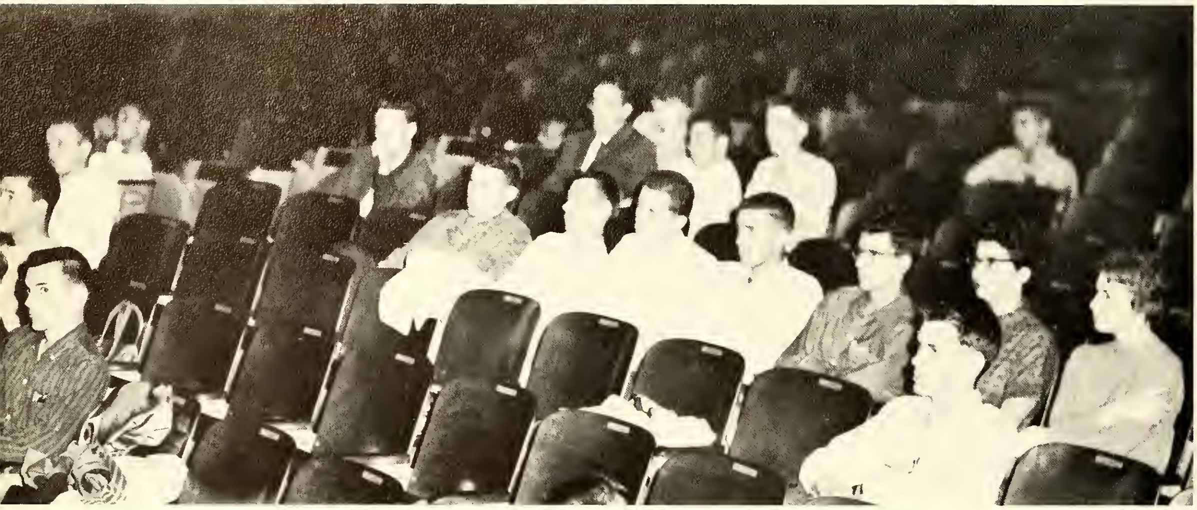
"A Budweiser!"

Asiatic flu cancelled the UMass game, and, more drastically, Northeastern and Brandeis severed sports relations as a result of an injury inflicted on a Brandeis player.

Connie Pappas promised to turn Northeastern into a Roman coliseum with daily orgies, girls, liquor, and more girls, and through the support of his disillusioned believers triumphed in the Mayor of Huntington Avenue contest under the guise of Emperor Constantine.

Marsha Gatonska was elected Northeastern's first homecoming queen, reigning at the UConn game and the Fall Sports Dance.

"Why, in ten weeks I'll have you . . ."



A study in apathy.

With the departure of Joe Gallison from the Northeastern stage, a promising freshman by the name of Tom McKee stepped in and took up the reins where Joe left off. The Masque productions of the year were "The Man Who Came to Dinner", "Dark of the Moon", "Oklahoma", and "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial".

Northeastern continued in its policy of expansion by purchasing the Boston Opera House. Plans for the Graduate Center were subsequently announced, and Dr. Arthur A. Vernon was named dean of the Graduate School.

Feeling a bit neglected after the arrival of a record-breaking number of 135 coeds, the masculine set at the University was relieved to hear the administration's announcement of the first male dormitory.

Dr. William C. White was named provost of the University, heading all educational activities of the Day Colleges, Evening Division, and Graduate School.

King Husky IV came to Boston and climaxed his visit with a regal yap on the "Big Brother" television program.

Don Johanson became the first brigadier general of the Northeastern ROTC contingent.

NORTHEASTERN

For the second consecutive year, Bo Lyons was named All-New England center by the Boston GLOBE sportswriters. Dick Dukeshire succeeded Professor Zabilski as basketball coach.

The late Dr. Elmer H. Cutts, then of the History Department, was granted a one year Fulbright Scholarship to teach in India.

Sophomoric apathy came to a head as the board and council elections were ordered cancelled by the Executive Committee of the Student Council owing to a sparsity of candidates, placing the Class of '61 under the jurisdiction of the Student Council.

Harold Caplan, Phil Crosby, Donny Cronin, and John Erickson were selected captains of the football, cross country, hockey, and basketball teams, respectively.

Dr. Carl S. Ell, following his 70th birthday, capped the year with the announcement of his retirement as president of the University after eighteen years in that capacity and forty-eight years at Northeastern.

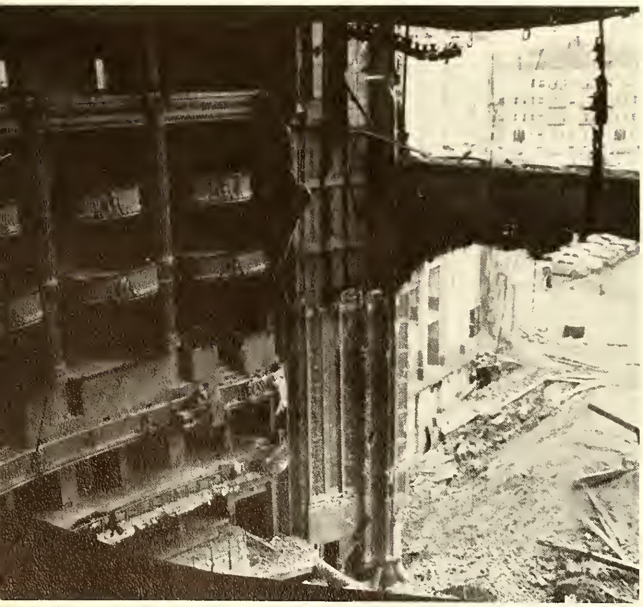
WHAT happened to King Husky? This question remained a prime topic of conversation for many months. Whether he had been put away or sent on an Antarctican expedition were two of the explanations offered. Finally, a King Chump was adopted in which a chimpanzee assumed the role of school mascot. Along with this live Husky issue arose a fund to construct a Husky statue in the University Quadrangle.

This year saw Northeastern take tremendous strides toward its expansion program. The old Boston Opera House on Huntington Avenue was razed. At this time, also, the Graduate Center was under construction. The Conservatory of Music dormitories on Hemenway Street were purchased by the University.

Retirements occupied a significant chapter in University activities. Dr. Ell, after forty-eight years at Northeastern, decided to retire as President. Upon vacating this position, he became Northeastern's first Chancellor. In his honor, the Student Center Building was renamed the Carl Stephens Ell Student Center.

Robert Dodge, for twenty-three years head of the Northeastern Corporation, was replaced by Byron K. Elliott. The Library Building was henceforth to be known as the Dodge Library Building.



The greatest show on earth . . . and the balconies empty.

Colonel Murray D. Harris, after six years at Northeastern, retired from the service. It was significant, also, that Northeastern University was presented a Certificate of Merit by Secretary of the Army Wilbur S. Brucker in recognition of the tremendous strides which ROTC had made at the University.

Although dropping the finale to the University of Connecticut, 38-14, Northeastern's football season proved very successful as evidenced by the team's six win, two loss record. The hockey team also enjoyed measurable success and the basketball squad enjoyed its first winning season in eleven years. The consistently fine rifle team was, at the time, being considered for high national ranking.

The Silver Masque presented "Pygmalion", "Great Sebastians", "Carousel", and "View from the Bridge". Al "Fido" Poole became the first Mr. Husky, and Rosemarie Dovidio and Sandy Nenart were chosen Homecoming and Winter Carnival queens, respectively.

Policies in education remained in the forefront of University news. Dean William T. Alexander, upon returning from a trip to Russia, made the observation that, "Russian engineers are exempt from the draft—they are considered the nation's aristocracy."

In a Northeastern NEWS editorial which dealt with cheating, the Business Administration College was inferred as being the one most near the source of this activity. Reprisals and counter-reprisals were in the air for several weeks thereafter.

The year was one of growth, controversy, and success. Under the new flag, selected from numerous designs, Northeastern surged forward in its search for increased educational benefits.

THE year was notably marked by a change in the University structure. The day and evening colleges, once separate entities, were combined into singular units. The result of this change allowed students to spread their courses over day and evening. Assistant Deans of the new colleges were Prof. William Wallace, College of Engineering; Prof. Carlo Gubellini, College of Business Administration; Prof. Clarence Thompson, College of Liberal Arts; and Prof. Thomas Cavanaugh, College of Education.

points, and a third by three points. Northeastern claimed its first All-American when the hockey team's Art Chisholm was chosen for the honored position.

Peace and world affairs received much attention during this year. A peace and disarmament group was formed and in March a model United Nations was presented in Alumni Auditorium. Many New England colleges participated, and only a severe snowstorm prevented Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt from taking part in the session.

The University felt deep losses in the deaths of Prof. Lawrence Capon, Prof. Eliot Tozer, and Dr. Elmer Cutts. All had distinguished themselves while at Northeastern, and it was only a short time previous that Dr. Cutts had returned from a year's study in India.

Politics played an important part in University life. As candidates for the mayor of Boston, Senator John Powers and John Collins spoke before large groups. As the election year of 1961 arrived, the gubernatorial candidates also came to Northeastern to express their views.

The growth of Northeastern, both physically and academically, was recognized. The Graduate Center was dedicated as the University's newest building. At the same time, Dr. Asa Knowles was inaugurated as Northeastern's third president. This year also saw the fiftieth anniversary of the co-operative system at Northeastern. John L. Burns, president of Radio Corporation of America, and former co-op student at Northeastern, gave the formal address at a commencement celebrating the anniversary. The co-op department also set a precedent in naming Miss Nancy Caruso as the first woman co-ordinator.

Male students were delighted to hear the enrollment figures which showed a record 227 coeds registering at Northeastern. While the female enrollment drew much attention, upperclass women were distinguishing themselves, as witnessed by Elizabeth Anderson, Judith Anderson and Carolyn Williams being chosen Homecoming, Military Ball, and Winter Carnival queens, respectively.

The Silver Masque's plays of the year were "Teahouse of the August Moon", "Tea and Sympathy", "Fanny", and "The Mousetrap". Joe "Fargo" Wells was elected Mayor of Huntington Avenue and Bob "Huckleberry Husky" Direng was chosen Mr. Husky.

For the first time in thirty-five years, Northeastern gained a new fraternity. Phi Alpha Rho, backed mainly by members of the Class of '61, was granted a charter.

In June, one who guided the fortunes of the Cauldron and News for many years, decided to step down. Professor Everett C. Marston, after a combined total of 48 years of service to these publications, retired from both positions.

And so another year passed. Through happiness, success, and sorrows, Northeastern continued its advance as one of the fastest growing universities.

IT seemed like only yesterday we were lowly undergraduates; then in a flash, we became lordly seniors. The moment of truth was upon us as the last anxious days flew past. Memories of this last year still linger, though, and as you look back, try to remember what you were doing when:

The largest freshman class in the history of the University arrived 2000 strong. It was amazing how these frosh seemed to be the youngest yet, or perhaps we were getting older.

But venerable seniors, wise with almost five years' college experience, joined the shy freshmen, as yet uninitiated to their new way of life, in exulting over the theft of the University of Rhode Island's ram. Even Dr. Knowles' step seemed to grow lighter as he was seen walking down the corridors of Richards Hall with a copy of the Boston GLOBE folded under his arm—the same newspaper that carried a front page story and picture of the ram and its captors.

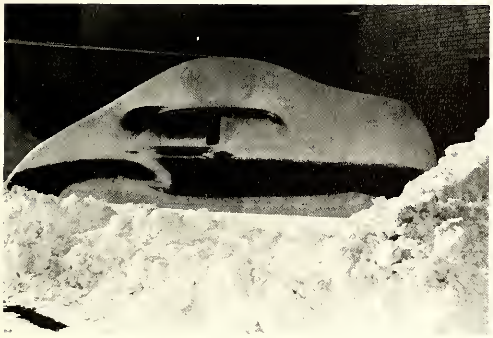
The fall term of our last year seemed to be animal oriented, as the NEWS cried long, loud, and alas, in vain, for a live Husky mascot. The administration's decision against household pets triggered reactions such as threats from the SPCA and an effigy of the Faculty Committee on Student Activities being thrown out of a fourth floor window of the Ell Student Center.

Politics became a big issue in the year of our departure. U. S. Senator Saltonstall, Governor Hatfield of Oregon and Massachusetts Senator Ward all voiced opinions on their respective campaigns. Politics in the University attained gigantic proportions as candidates for the Mayor of Huntington Avenue ran amuck in the corridors. Hula girls, Roman legions, TV gangsters, Russians, and elephants thundered across the Quadrangle.

The highlight of that term was the Homecoming Weekend. Nancy MacLean was chosen queen, a float parade held, and the football team beaten. Division A went to work, Division B started making time with the freshman girls, and winter arrived.



Down and out is the effigy of the Faculty Committee after the latter had voted against the University owning a Husky mascot.

The snow, usually reserved for classrooms and examinations, suddenly was waist-high in the parking lot. The University cancelled classes, and the world stopped. The holidays caused by the storms brought a new element into the study problem: too much time. But most of us spent it wisely—sleeping, shoveling, and maybe if all else failed to relieve the ennui, studying.

Some of us were brilliant scholastically, too. John J. Dias received the $500 Hodgkinson Award given to the top-ranking senior, and 33 others received Sears B. Condit Awards.

"We shall return!"

Among the many interesting speakers who came to Northeastern was Dr. Wernher von Braun, noted rocket and space expert. He predicted that the United States would put a man into space by the spring of 1961.

A model UN was set up and all the world's problems were settled in a single weekend.

The snowstorms that paralyzed Boston created a new outlet for a few of the more artistically inclined. The annual Winter Carnival featured a contest for snow sculptures. Statues based on fantasies were erected by several fraternities, the Band, and Gamma Delta. The creations ranged from Yogi Bear to a prize winning representation of St. George slaying the Dragon, and included "Humpty Dumpty", "King Neptune", and "Albert and the Alligator".

One of the more educating diversions used by us to kill study-time was watching the razing of the Storage Warehouse. The Avenue was lined with sidewalk superintendents as the walls came tumbling down to an awed audience of students, faculty and MTA riders.

As we look back to our days at the University, we remember the plays of the Silver Masque, and how it was almost impossible to get tickets no matter what the production was. We saw "Life With Father", "Anastasia", "South Pacific", and "Good News". We walked around the campus humming "There Is Nothing Like a Dame", and remembering the queens of the Winter Carnival, Homecoming, the Military Ball and our own personal queens.

The football team takes a bow at a pre-game rally in the Quad.

The cutting of the cake at the annual Student Union cake baking contest.

Our last year was different from the others in a very important way—financially. The rush for Senior Week tickets, the threatening letters about the payment of class dues, "extra expenses" such as that graduation fee, the tuxedo for the Senior Prom, and all that loose change for the "goodies" consumed during senior week.

From the beginning of the year, Senior Week was looked forward to as the one time when no finals interrupted our education. The days were filled with new and exciting things: laying on the beach in the sun, dancing under the stars on the Moonlight cruise, listening to the beautiful music of the Boston Pops. We were on the way out during Senior Week . . . so we lived for six days as we had dreamed of doing for five years.

Five years, and it was all over. For some the finale came with sudden shock. For others it was a drawn-out affair.

Exit, Class of '61.

Even their combined force couldn't stop Jack Nixovitch from becoming the Mayor of Huntington Avenue.

LITERALLY ranging all the way from the depths of the Atlantic Ocean to the peaks of the White Mountains, Northeastern activities readily filled the bill.

As a commuting school Northeastern can be proud of its more than 80 activities. They fought the subway and their concrete surroundings, emerging with a vitality that told of a greater spirit.

For those with an inclination toward the outdoors, there were the Hus-Skiers and Outing Club, the Husky Divers, and the Yachting Club. For the creatively inclined, there were the publications, the Silver Masque, and the poetry society.

Engineers flocked into the engineering societies, while business administration students attended meetings of the Accounting Society or the Advertising Society.

There was a lot going on around Northeastern.

The many faces of the Northeastern NEWS.

The NEWS gets burned in an ash barrel after a controversial editorial.

The Northeastern NEWS

Div. A news editor Bob Nunes interviews Gov. Mark Hatfield of Oregon.

Despite being burned in a barrel in the Quadrangle, this year's Northeastern NEWS featured the biggest issues (28 pages), the most color and, the editors feel, the most interesting editions ever.

When the new editors took the reigns last February, they were saddened to learn that Professor Everett C. Marston, advisor to the NEWS for 23 years, would retire.

The vacuum caused by his departure from the NEWS was filled by Mr. Louis E. Roberts. Mr. Roberts immediately made his presence felt by instituting a journalism seminar for NEWS editors.

On many a Monday afternoon from 3:00-5:00 p.m., the third floor of the Ell Student Center would echo with cries of disputed journalism ethics or an ever more technical discussion on whether a comma should have been inserted in a headline. If it shouldn't have been inserted, we were sure to blame it on the Tarbis.

Division A set a new precedent this year by running two front page editorials: one on the Husky mascot (King Husky), and one on the parking problem.

As yet the University has not purchased a live Husky, but plans for construction of additional parking facilities were announced shortly after the parking editorial appeared.

Other innovations this year included a pizza party thrown by the Tarbis for each division. Temporarily forgotten were editing and make-up. After starving for weeks in the smoke filled cubby hole sometimes known as the NEWS office, 307E, the ravenous editors hurled themselves upon the luscious lasagna and hot crisp pizza. And thanks to the President's Luncheon, the Inner Office was mobbed by raiders of a refrigerator as Foster was left outside holding the stick.

There was spirited rivalry between the two divisions this year (some termed it the "cold war") to see who could produce the best papers. We won't try to decide this here. We think the facts speak for themselves.

Burning the midnight oil was the rule rather than the exception in the NEWS office. When the University's night cleaning crew descended upon the Center Building in the wee hours, they grew accustomed to stumbling over the inert bodies of two or three NEWS editors who had collapsed with exhaustion after struggling through some last minute make-up changes or the rewriting of an editorial.

Desks serve a dual function in the NEWS office.

A few coeds graced the NEWS office and helped to keep morale high.

Strict discipline was the key note this year. When one editor said that he had to go home for a short while, he was greatly surprised to find his pages completed when he staggered in eight hours later. But then everyone has a skeleton in the closet.

The NEWS took the lead among greater Boston college publications, not only in the editorial department, but also on the business side. Lawrence Manisoff, NEWS advertising manager, called a conference of local college advertising managers in order to promote unified action in raising national advertising rates.

The editors of this year's NEWS feel that the paper has reached its peak under the present system and facilities. The peak was reached with the 28 page Division A Homecoming issue.

This epoch issue was not only the largest edition that the NEWS ever printed, but it also contained the most color ever used and an eight page homecoming supplement which should bring back memories in future years.

This year's NEWS is one which all of Northeastern can be proud of. A NEWS which is worthy of an All-American rating by the Associated Collegiate Press.

Dance Band

The Dance Band is open to all students with musical ability, and membership is attained through competitive effort.

During the year weekly rehearsals were held on the third floor of the Ell Center Building. Music played ranged from popular selections to slow dance music, with concerts being presented periodically in the Commons.

Education Society

The goals of the National Education Association are to provide opportunities and experiences for college students preparing to teach and to develop professional awareness and competency.

Early last fall Professor Robert Wells started off a series of speakers; he was followed by Mr. David Cook with a discussion on the social class status and its influence on student behavior.

In November a symposium with the Debating Society focused on the federal government's role in education, and Owen Kiernan, Massachusetts State Commissioner of Education, spoke in conjunction with National Education Week held November 1-10.

Cheerleaders

First Row: G. Burns, J. Miles (captain). Second Row: E. Nickerson, D. Breen, M. Murray. Third Row: J. Howard, P. Diment, A. Alexander.

"Let's give a cheer! Yaa N, Yaa U, Yaa Yaa N U!"

The above cheer was a familiar sound to those who attended the sports functions at Northeastern during the past year.

The cheerleaders were to be found cheering at all the home basketball and football games and the away University of Massachusetts and University of Rhode Island football matches.

The peppy eight also cheered at the Mayoralty rally, the Mr. Husky rally, pre-game rallies, and took part in the victory motorcade and rally after the Norwich game.

In March the squad had a get together dinner to discuss the new season and old procedures.

"Go team, go!"

Omega Sigma

Once again, Omega Sigma carried forth its objectives of offering women students at Northeastern the opportunity for closer friendship, for spirited participation in wholesome activity, and for leadership development.

Freshman women were greeted with an open-house during Freshman Orientation Week, and later saw Omega Sigma present its own program for Freshman Night.

The society later joined with Gamma Delta in an "Activities Night" for members, and during the holidays combined with the Student Union in throwing a Christmas party for children at the Dorchester House.

Other activities included co-sponsorship of the Mid-Winter Ball with Gamma Delta, a sports tournament with the same society, a bridge party, open house for faculty, students and members, and the "Can Can" float at Homecoming.

Husky Hi-Liters

Northeastern's terrors of the air waves, otherwise known as the Husky Hi-Liters, offered a varied program this year. Music wise they played everything from Bach to Elvis. Discussion wise they spoke about the weather to football.

Midway through the year they abandoned scripts and began to adlib, which set off a series of spirited debates. Another successful feature instituted this year was a series of morning broadcasts consisting of soothing music and informal chatter.

Turning up the volume of the amplifier to overcome the dull roar in the Commons, the Hi-Liters set a standard of broadcasting which their successors will find hard to beat.

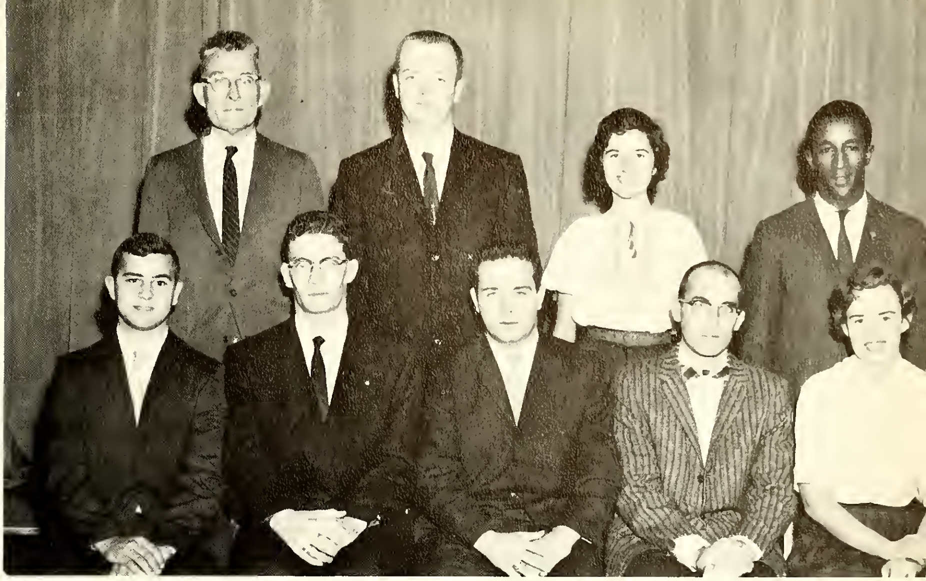
Chapel Choir

During the past year, the Chapel Choir was heard singing hymns at chapel during the weekly morning services. Rehearsal for this activity was carried on once a week.

The members of the Chapel Choir, in collaboration with the Student Union, held a social in the spring.

The year was climaxed by a banquet at which certificates were awarded for one year's service and charms were presented for two years' service.

Sitting: J. Huysmans Jr., B. Pratt (sec.-treas.), P. Ryan (pres.), M. Andolina (vice pres.), J. Hearn. Standing: Prof. Barkley (advisor), J. Bertocchi, H. Langille, W. Campbell.



International Relations Club

Students of both divisions of the International Relations Club participated in the second annual Model United Nations held in March. Delegates from schools throughout Massachusetts staged three mock sessions of the General Assembly and enjoyed the "International Dinner".

Speakers and movies contributed to the success of the weekly meetings. Michael Buttler of the British Consulate talked on Nigerian independence; Prof. Sidney Herman discussed Castro's Cuba; and Dr. Roy John revealed his impressions of Russia, which he recently visited.

The purpose of the Psychology Club is to acquaint the student with what is currently being done in the various areas of psychology.

In line with this objective, club activities over the year included talks by men experienced in the field. Some of the speakers were Dr. Harold Zamansky, Dr. Bertrand Warren, and Dr. Philip Pendleton, all from Northeastern.

Such topics as peripheral vision research, motivation, counseling, and vocational rehabilitation were discussed.

The Student Council, arbiter and authority on all matters related to student policies not definitely connected with classroom procedure, found itself in the center of a flurry of controversy this year.

No sooner had the school year begun than the Council became involved as mediator in the King Husky hassle, ultimately seeing its proposal for a live Husky dog rejected by the Faculty Committee on Student Activities.

Sororities were given permission to form through the mediation of the Council, and a proposal for male students to wear Bermuda shorts with knee socks was passed and accepted.

The Husky Dog Statue Committee formed by the Council carried the plans for the Husky Statue to their fruition; a Culture Committee was also established to investigate the possibility of a guest lecture series at Northeastern.

On top of this, the Council carried out its regular duties of running class board and council elections and regulating University bulletin boards.

History Club

During the past year, the History Club sponsored talks by Prof. Fullington and Prof. Rosenblatt on the domestic and foreign policy of the United States during the 1920's.

Also among the club's activities for the year was a dinner at which Dean Ryder was the guest speaker.

Other activities included the showing of the movies entitled, "Winston Churchill," "Henry VIII," and "The Indiscreet Senator."

Sitting: K. Desens, A. Juchnavorian (sec.), P. Downoy Jr. (pres.), Prof. Bishop (advisor), E. Peters (vice pres.). Standing: B. McGowan, H. Langille, M. Andolina, L. Caranica.

Jazz Society

The Jazz Society, the official organ for the promotion of jazz as a creative art form at Northeastern, continued to grow as one of the largest and most active organizations on campus.

Some organizational changes this year were the temporary elimination of the officer system and the formation of an executive board system of government. However, the former was voted back in February. Also, a Division B group was organized.

Programs were held each week, including speakers, live jazz groups, and recorded performances. A four day excursion to New York in August was ventured where members attended various jazz concerts. Also, the annual concert was presented at Northeastern, featuring James Rushing and Lee Konitz.

The pride of the Jazz Society is its magazine, Jazz-Northeastern. Material in the fall issue by two members had previously appeared in Metronome, a national magazine.

A declaration of war was declared when the NEWS stole the Society's drift wood and a raisin.

Through the enthusiasm of a handful of aquatic-minded students, the Husky Divers sprung into existence this year.

Diving trips and weekly meetings with guest lecturers and movies, were held throughout the year.

Of their most significant activities were their assistance in rescue operations on the Electra plane crash in Winthrop, in which over 60 persons were killed.

The club also took a tour to the U. S. submarine base in New London, Conn., provided diving instruction, and took part in underwater archeological research.

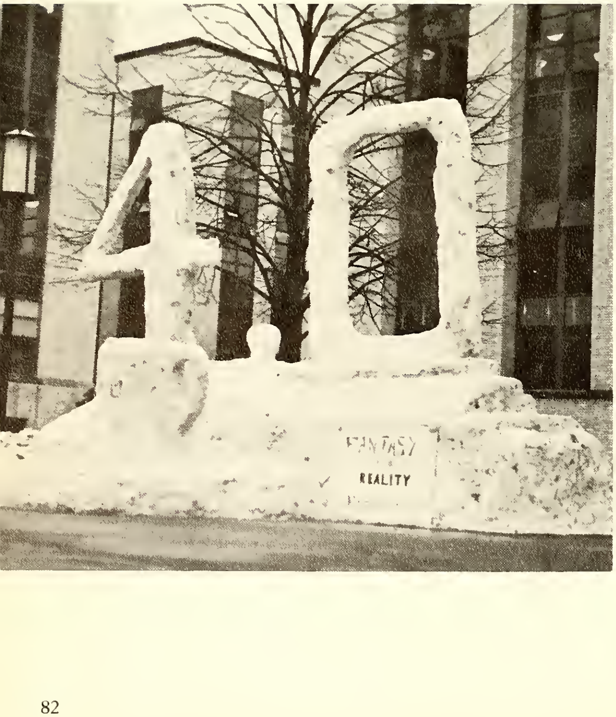
"Fantasy and Reality at Northeastern," the Band's entry in the Winter Carnival snow sculpture contest.



Band

Football, basketball, and hockey games provided the arena in which the Band showed off its musical talents during the past year. The Band even "went professional" by performing at a Red Sox baseball game.

Around school, the Band provided the music for the Freshman Night Show and the Winter Festival. The annual ninth week concert in Alumni Auditorium saw the Band playing show tunes and semi-classical music before a substantial and appreciative audience.

Outside concerts were held at the Boston State Mental Hospital and at Weymouth, Mass. The Band "took to the road" and followed the hockey team to Yale University and West Point to cheer the team on in their own inimitable way.

The activity-filled year was rounded out by participation in several civic parades in surrounding areas.

The purpose of the Student Union is to deepen the spiritual lives of Northeastern men and women through the building of character, to create and promote a strong Northeastern spirit through a unified student body, and to emphasize certain ethical, civic and avocational values.

Throughout the year the Student Union engaged in such community projects as settlement house work, Christmas parties for children, work for the blind, and recreational parties for old folks and mentally and emotionally disturbed children in both state and private institutions.

The Student Union worked closely with Chapel, obtaining speakers for services, providing refreshments at the Chapel social hours, and notifying the student body of Chapel activities.

Other social activities included mountain climbs, cookouts, skating parties, historical trips, cake contests, a book dance, and beach and swimming parties.

Members served as student guides for the Department of Admissions and were on emergency call to work in University offices.

NU WRITER

After a flurry of steadfast deadlines, letters in the NEWS criticising the magazine, and editorial retorts that claimed superiority over the Atlantic Monthly, the NU Writer came out with its fourth issue last March, one that was generally considered the best yet.

Selections were made from over thirty-five poems and close to thirty prose manuscripts submitted, with students from both divisions, coeds, freshmen, and even an engineer represented in the magazine.

Printed for the first time in a professional format, the magazine is now considering the adoption of a semi-annual publication policy.

The NU Writer was founded in 1958 to serve as a vehicle for the creative, literary efforts of the undergraduate student body at Northeastern. It is edited solely by students.

Newly instituted this year were the NU Writer Prose and Poetry Prizes of $10 each, given to the most deserving manuscripts in the magazine in these respects, and the sponsorship of Pegasus, the Northeastern Poetry Society.

Heading the magazine this year was Harold Bond, with Jon Anderson and Joe de Roche as associate editors.

The editors discuss the merits of a manuscript.

Political Club

The objective of the Political Club is to provide interested students with the opportunity to become better acquainted with current political issues and to hear outstanding speakers from national and state political organizations.

Among the outstanding speakers during the year were Governor Furculo, Oregon's Republican Governor Hatfield, and Senator Saltonstall.

A visit by Governor Hatfield and Senator Saltonstall occasioned a turnout of more than 400 young Republicans at a meeting held in the Graduate Center Cafeteria in September.

Governor Hatfield called for more economic aid to under-developed countries. Senator Saltonstall spoke on "National Security and the 86th Congress."

Governor Furculo and John Volpe also had their turns to debate the campaign issues in talks given at Northeastern and sponsored by the Club.

Silver Masque

Despite an occasional blast from NEWS critics, the Silver Masque came through this year with four productions of the usual high standards.

Led by Tom McKee and Dick Blue, and, of course, Professor Eugene J. Blackman (the Great White Father), the Masque offered a combination of tragedy, farce, and a musical.

"Life With Father", "Anastasia", "South Pacific", and "Good News" passed across the stage of Alumni Auditorium, leaving audiences with unforgettable evenings of college theatre.

Even Professor Blackman (BMOC—Biggest Man On Campus) was happy when he leveled his guns on NEWS drama critics in a hate-mongering column in the NEWS Banquet Issue.

Alpha Psi Omega

Theatre is Not Just Acting

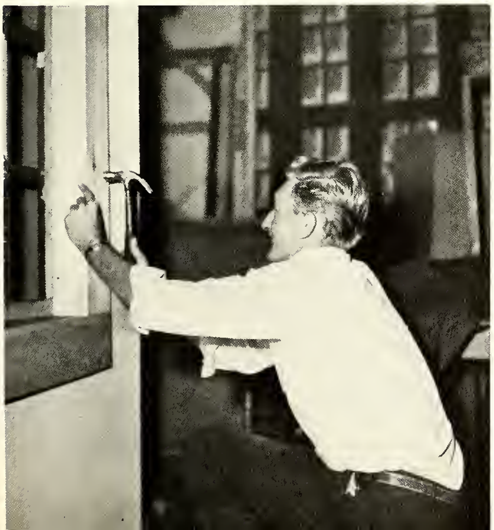
While the audience of a Masque play marvels at the combination of acting and technical work that add up to a successful play, they little realize the hours of work put in by the men behind the scenes.

The backstage Masque crew, who belong to local Union 696, consist of about 10 members. During the seventh week of each term, the set is marked and the stage is masked, which requires the arrangement of curtains and stage props.

The next week and a half is spent on final touches, which include set painting, lighting, and the selling of tickets to newcomers.

Though these unsung heroes receive little publicity, they receive their satisfaction on performance nights with the knowledge of a job well done.

Hilarious farce and light innuendoes set the tone for "Life With Father", the Masque's first production of the season.



The period comedy sets off the personalities of a completely feminine Mrs. Day, played by Noralie Barnett, and the masculine Mr. Day, as portrayed by Tom McKee.

Against a background of humorous family squabbles, revolved the dominant plot of the play—the struggle of Mrs. Day to obtain the baptismal of Mr. Day.

Naturally Mr. Day need not see the sense of such foolishness, but the wiley cries of Mrs. Day—"It wouldn't be heaven without you, Claire"—finally persuades the stubborn but well-meaning head of the house.

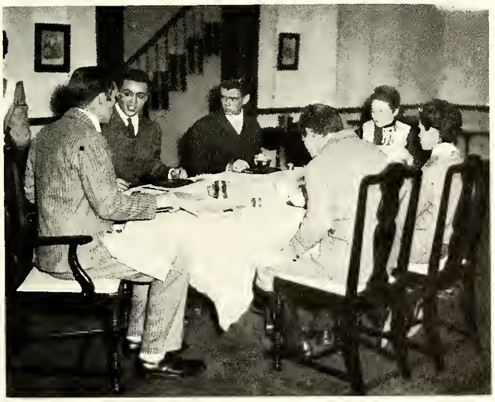
The supporting cast added more humor to the domestic farce. Bob Kwessel as the sympathizing minister Lloyd. He was so sure he could understand the philosophy of the businessman as he summed up a vocal image of the hard-pressed man in the world praying humbly to the Maker in the midst of his daily struggle. Of course he was sure of the construction costs of the new church—at least until he was under the interrogation of Mr. Day.

And Joyce Deneault, portraying the clumsy cook. Well meaning but awkward, Joyce portrayed aptly the characteristic of the burlesque servant.

And Mary Parrott—she only needed to scream to receive one of the comedy's biggest laughs.

In Shakespeare's time males played the parts of young ladies, but in this production Professor Blackman gave the bard a new twist when he cast Maureen Costa in the role of the mischievous young lad, Harlan.

"Life With Father"



"Anastasia"

The stage of Alumni Auditorium was transformed into a continental living room when the Masque presented Guy Bolton's "Anastasia" as their second offering of the year.

Alex Kondracki played the male lead as the dashing but scoundrelly Prince Bounine, while Joyce Deneault and Noralie Barnett took the female honors as Anastasia and the Dowager Empress.

The three leads, helped by an excellent supporting cast, carried weak script along for three acts of top-notch acting.

Mathematics Club

The Mathematics Club's members met during the year to discuss mathematical subjects not directly encountered in class discussion.

Lectures were given by speakers from the faculty and also by invited guests. A series of these speeches were concerned with the problems of vector analysis.

Physics Society

The Physics Society sponsored regular meetings throughout the year at which guest speakers discussed topics of interest in the field of physics.

Although the majority of those in attendance were physics majors, a considerable number of those present represented widely divergent fields.

The year's program also included demonstrations, films, and tours through local centers of research.

Sociology Club

Increasing membership and expanding activities gave the Sociology Club Room 19D as its official club headquarters this year.

Weekly meetings featured speakers from social services and the academic world, with an increasing interest in the fine arts to balance professionalism.

The second Mardi Gras was held in February; revenue was used for prizes in the spring sociology-anthropology essay contest. The awards were announced at the annual spring banquet held in an exotic ethnic atmosphere.

The club aimed this year to increase student-instructor interaction outside the classroom and to define the professional goals of sociology and anthropology for beginning and advance students.

As usual the panic button was pushed in the Cauldron office this year as the awesome February deadline approached.

But overcoming all obstacles (and there were many), Foster T. Chandler Jr. (FTC), Jim Powers (JP), and crew overcame the fearsome odds and sent the copy, dummy, and pictures to New York on time, thereby becoming the first Cauldron in recent years to meet all deadlines.

Beginning last spring, the merry martyrs (Cauldron board and staff), began spending their nights in the third floor cubicle located in the Ell Student Center.

At first there was much good cheer in the friendly abode. But as spring stretched into summer, and summer stretched into autumn, laughter was replaced by silence as the piles of data sheets accumulated and the number of missing pictures mounted.

Aside from such minor difficulties, there were times when the staff had "fun." For example, there was the joyous period of compiling lists and more lists of potential advertisers.

Then there was the first advertising letter to be sent out. As the staff sat around stuffing the envelopes, the University rang with off-key voices singing an assortment of off-color standards. After the first letter was sent, a second follow-up letter was mailed, with more stuffing and more singing. However, the singing stopped with the third letter. Mainly because nobody had answered the first two.

Jim Powers, managing editor (left), handled the mammoth tasks of collecting and editing data sheets and arranging for individual and club pictures.

CAULDRON

Extensive use of color necessitated professional advice.

Then came senior pictures and data sheets. A space was provided on the data sheets for additional pertinent information. But the editors weren't sure whether they should print such gems as "I met some nice girls here," or "It's been a blast."

"What do you mean, 'He wouldn't take an ad'?"

In addition to senior pictures, there were the club pictures to be taken. The editors thought that the directions were clear enough, but when the Underwater Basket Weaving Club showed up at the time reserved for the Hunky Dolittles, they began to scratch their heads.

The life of the Cauldron photographer was a hazardous one. For example, while he was trying to photograph the Quadrangle in zero degree weather, his shutter froze and his tripod collapsed.

If these weren't enough distractions, the wandering denizens of the Jazz Society came up from the black sanctuary in the basement and stole the yearbook's official charter of the "Ancient and Honorable Order of Has Beens."

The actual physical hazards included the pick ax hanging over the Business Manager's desk. The ax always seemed to be just on the verge of slipping loose from the wire holding it to the ceiling.

Just as there was peace and quiet and everybody was settling down to work, an obsequious presence from the NU Writer would start hollering for his missing basket.

The members of the Class of '61 who complain about the Cauldron should bear in mind that this year's publication is out one month before last year's.

There never seemed to be an end to those advertising letters.

Rifle Club

Once again this year, the Rifle Club had the distinction of having the largest participating membership of any club in the University. More than 400 students used the range facilities to qualify for the various National Rifle Association ratings available to them.

Extra-club activities included a banquet, a turkey shoot, non-team member rifle matches, and a high school invitational tournament, in which 12 teams from four states competed for the club's Rotating Trophy.

Husky Key

Jack Cochrane (second from right) bows out as George Brewster, Paul Gallagher and Paul Fitzhenry take over the reins.

To start off a year of promoting school spirit, the Husky Key welcomed the Class of 1965 with a Freshman Night Show which included skits and booth displays by the different University organizations.

The football season ushered in rallies for games with the University of Rhode Island, Norwich University and the University of Massachusetts.

The Mayor of Huntington Avenue Contest and the Husky statue controversy spirited discussions and stimulated campus activity. The Husky Key also provided ushers for the Silver Masque's "Life With Father."

Homecoming Weekend highlighted the season's festivities, featuring the crowning of the Homecoming queen and a float parade.

The fall sports awards and the Homecoming Queen and her court were presented at the Fall Sports Dance.

A committee was organized during Division B to formulate a program and develop plans for Husky Key activities in that division.

The Winter Carnival, fortuned with blizzard snow accumulations, displayed seven snow sculptures in the Quad. Other carnival festivities included the Bowdoin game, the IFC open house, a queen contest, skiing at Groton, and a dance.

The Mr. Husky contest and the annual Key banquet ended up the social functions for the year.

Chess Club

The moody misters who daily sat and sat and sat in Edwards Lounge staring at red and black miniatures were really doing something.

They were playing chess.

The Chess Club conducted weekly meetings and periodic tournaments. Special instructions were available for new members and all students interested in the game.

Choral Society

In the fall, the Choral Society performed at the President's Convocation in Symphony Hall, at Dean Havice's church in Belmont, and at the Alumni Dinner at the Parker House.

Christmas offered an opportunity to participate in a joint concert with Lesley College and Worcester Tech and with the faculty wives in their Christmas party in the Mitton Lounge. Carolling was also provided at the Rogerson House and for the State Mental Hospital in Mattapan.

Hus-Skiers and Outing Club

Some climbs became rather rough.

Tuckerman Ravine in late Spring.

Every Friday afternoon found members of the Hus-Skiers and Outing Club gathering together at school after classes, forming a car pool, and taking off to New Hampshire to enjoy a weekend of skiing and climbing.

To build up enthusiasm for a forthcoming weekend, weekly movies on skiing were held in 356R.

The rugged individualists made climbing and camping trips during the summer and fall to Mt. Washington, Crawford Notch, and the Carter and Franconia Ranges.

The Hus-Skiers sponsored their annual Asa C. Osborn Trophy Race at Woodstock, Vt., in February.

The highlight of the year was the Winter Carnival held in March at Spruce Mt. Lodge in Jackson, N. H.

Biology Club

The Biology Club (Nu Beta Society) was organized to stimulate interest in biological sciences by presentations of films and lectures, and by participation in field trips.

Activities for the year included a Halloween party, a fossil hunting expedition, a field trip to Harvard MCZ, and a dinner with Dr. Copeland, chief pathologist of the New England Deaconess Hospital, as guest.

Senior Week Committee

Plans for Senior Week were initiated last summer at a barbeque arranged by Prof. Seth Armen, advisor.

The class officers, along with the senior week chairmen, arranged for a resort day, an outing, a night at the pops, a moonlight cruise, the commencement ball, and a class day.

Through mass meetings in the Auditorium and persistent dues collection, Senior Week was made a success.

Sitting: E. Ryan Jr., J. Melone (sec.), R. Sidor (pres.), Prof. Fennell (advisor), D. Powers. Standing: S. Davis, C. Savage, R. Callihan, E. Cahill, G. Trepanier, J. Waaser.

Camera Club

The Camera Club, with complete facilities for the developing and printing of films, once more spent a year of popping flashbulbs, operating out of the third floor of the Ell Center Building.

Members engaged in field trips and exhibitions, while guest speakers attended weekly meetings to discuss the techniques of photography and the processes involved in developing and printing.

Radio Club

The Northeastern Radio Club sponsored during 1960-61, two "Radio Days" at which over two hundred radiograms were sent free of charge to friends and relatives of Northeastern students.

The club demonstrated the quality of its membership by ranking high in the results of a number of nation-wide and world-wide amateur radio contests in which they participated.

Continuing their plans for benefiting others, the Radio Club assisted a number of prospective amateur radio operators in obtaining their licenses.

Gamma Delta

A beach party, intersociety sports and social work were carried on during the past year by Gamma Delta.

Intersociety activity was shown by the annual Omega Sigma-Gamma Delta Mid-winter Dance and by the many basketball, volleyball, and fistball games.

Service to the University was demonstrated when the girls acted as ushers for the Silver Masque presentations and once again were sponsors of chapel services.

Other activities during the year were a Get Acquainted Dance with the Men's Dorm, a float at the Homecoming game, and a cake baking contest held for the campus fraternities.

Debating Society

Travel and talk were the key words in the description of the Debating Society's activities during the past year. At home, the Society engaged in inter-collegiate debates with teams from Harvard, Emerson, and Yeshiva, and trips were made to Brown, Yale and the Coast Guard Academy to compete in debates there.

More extensive debating, in tournament form, was engaged in at Amherst, Mt. Holyoke, MIT, and Dartmouth. The Society also entered into a debate with the Northeastern Education Society.

Sitting: J. Souza (sec.-treas.), K. Bronstein (vice pres.), S. Harris (pres.), P. Selkowe (manager), Mr. Khiralla (advisor). Standing: M. Rosenbloom, J. Funchion, G. Kane, B. Lieberman.

Sitting: J. Rice (vice pres.), G. Brewster (pres.), R. Dovidio (sec.). Standing: R. Egan (ex-officio), P. Bieler (treas.).

Senior Class Officers

The senior class officers met faithfully every Friday in Room 222H to discuss the problems and plans of the senior class. The past year being the year, much of the officers' time was taken up with matters concerning the plans for collections of dues and Senior Week activities.

The class board, through its section representatives, served as a liaison between the student body and the administration.

In September and April, class meetings were held in the Alumni Auditorium to inform seniors as to progress on such matters as dues collection, Senior Week progress, and the selection of alumni officers.

Other activities during the year included a buffet-meeting at Prof. Armen's house in Norfolk and a joint meeting with Division B officers.

The Accounting Society, celebrating its 13th anniversary, has seen rapid growth in both membership and financial strength.

The primary aims of the Society are to bring its members in direct contact with leaders in fields of business and government—through guest speakers, conferences and field trips—and to aid them in selecting the field best suited to their aptitudes.

Prof. Joseph M. Golemme, acting as advisor to the Society, has been of inestimable help in arranging programs and securing speakers.

Presidents for 1960-61 were Warren Whitney in Division A and Raymond Snow in Division B.

Advertising Society

The Advertising Society held meetings every other week during the past year to hear leading speakers from business and advertising agencies present discussions, exhibits, and case histories on current advertising problems. Informative and interesting question and answer periods followed.

The annual Marketing and Advertising banquet was held in April. Once again, the top advertising student in the senior class was sent to New York to represent Northeastern at "Inside Advertising Week."

American Chemical Society

The American Chemical Society is open to upperclassmen majoring in chemistry or chemical engineering.

Weekly meetings with movies on chemistry and its applications and informal tutoring sessions by upperclassmen were held throughout the year.

A trip to the nuclear reactor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a guest lecture by Dr. Martha Thomas on "The Chemistry of Lighting" highlighted the year's activities.

Sitting: B. Harris, S. Elfbaum (vice pres.), E. Dale (pres.), M. Clifford (treas.), J. Penta. Standing: A. Mahoney, C. Whitney, J. Ryan, E. Skolnick.

American Finance Association

Sitting: Prof. Willett (advisor), N. Finnegan (treas.), R. Sullivan (pres.), J. Clarke (vice pres.). Standing: R. McMahon, R. Murray, H. Cammack Jr.

Both divisions of the American Finance Association featured trips to New York, including visits to the financial district and Wall Street with particular interest in the New York Stock Exchange, the American Stock Exchange and various security dealers.

During the year prominent personalities in the various fields of finance provided interesting meetings.

A wider opportunity for active participation in business was available by continued maintenance of an investment fund for buying and selling securities in the open market.

American Marketing Association

During the past year, insurance sales, retailing, public relations, and market research were developed by speakers who addressed the bi-weekly meetings of the American Marketing Association.

In October Henry A. Berish, president of Quality Steel Products Inc., spoke on the importance of product packaging in the do-it-yourself industry.

The annual Marketing and Advertising banquet was held in April. The banquet, per usual, consisted of good food, a fine talk, and the usual amount of poking fun at the professors.

American Institute of Chemical Engineers

Northeastern's student chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers held regular meetings during the year at which practicing engineers gave talks. Occasionally, motion pictures were shown and group visits taken to current engineering projects in the Boston area.

The year's activities were climaxed by the annual chapter banquet held in the spring.

The joint student branch AIEE-IRE is a campus affiliate of the two national electrical engineering professional societies. The student branch sponsored a weekly seminar or film on a subject of interest to the electrical engineering student.

The social event of the year was the annual "Sparks in the Night" dance held in the electrical engineering laboratory.

The student branch also published Random Noise,

American Institute of Industrial Engineers

Some well-known speakers highlighted the activities of the year for AIIE.

Mr. Carl Rosenburg, a Northeastern graduate and chief industrial engineer, spoke on quality control as applied to the meat packing industry; Mr. Harold Dunlap talked on work simplification, and Mr. Alexander Strong, retired senior partner of a large consulting engineering firm, gave an interesting talk on his field and its opportunities.

AIIE seniors were also invited to attend the annual AIIE convention held at the Sheraton Plaza.

American Society of Mechanical Engineers

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers has as its purpose the advancement of the profession of mechanical engineering.

Membership in the Society is represented by every aspect of industry, government, and education. Eleven thousand of the members in the ASME are students, and Northeastern did its best to fill its share of the ranks during the past year.

Weekly meetings were held at which interesting speakers from the engineering profession discussed problems of current interest to the profession. Other activities included paper writing, field trips, and the annual student chapter banquet.

N. U. Civil Engineering Society

A lecture series and symposium on the use of IBM computers, supplemented by guest speakers, contributed much to the weekly meetings of NUCES. There were also field trips to Worcester Polytechnic Institute Hydraulic Laboratories and the Groisser and Shlager Iron Works.

Four student paper contests and four editions of the Bulldozer were successfully produced.

The society was host chapter to the New England Conference of Student Chapters in May and the Student Day Program of the ASCE National Convention in October.

A beach party, the annual fall dance, the NUCES-BSCE annual joint dinner meeting, and a family dinner were also enjoyed by all.

Society for the Advancement of Management

During the past year, the members of the Society for the Advancement of Management have focused their interests on current management problems and business developments.

Speakers from local business and industry as well as movies contributed to the success of the weekly meetings. Field trips to companies such as United Shoe augmented learning opportunities.

In addition to the regular activities, members enjoyed both the dinner and business meeting of the Boston Chapter.

SAM currently possesses the largest membership of any student chapter in the country.

Pi Sigma Alpha

The government honor society, Pi Sigma Alpha, sponsored meetings during the past year at which individuals who had made significant contributions to the field of political science, spoke.

A highlight of this year's lecture activity was the co-sponsoring with the Department of Political Science of an open meeting at which Dr. Henry Schartz, Soviet affairs specialist for the New York Times, spoke.

Sitting: S. Sherter, J. Keach Jr. (pres.), E. Jackamonis (sec.-treas.), Prof. Wilfong (advisor). Standing: N. Zucker, Dr. Greenwald, J. Tobey.

Pi Tau Sigma

Pi Tau Sigma, the mechanical engineering honor society, is open in membership to men and women who have distinguished themselves in scholarship, character, and extracurricular life at Northeastern.

The Society held an annual initiation banquet at which time qualified undergraduates were admitted to membership.

Election to such an honorary society is the highest honor that can be conferred upon an undergraduate.

Sitting: E. Coughlan, J. Wajda, R. Purdy, C. Conlon. Standing: J. O'Callahan, R. Rosoff, R. Webb, W. Hannon, J. Cashman.

Tau Beta Pi provides opportunity for recognition and fellowship among the students exemplifying superior qualities and deep interest in engineering.

The Wednesday evening meetings can be remembered for the many interesting and lively discussions on such subjects as song recordings, dues, projects, and inter-chapter activities.

New membership considerations spotlighted the agenda. Recognition and Consideration Nights, election, informal and formal initiation, ending with the banquet—all these events were enjoyed by all.

Eta Kappa Nu

The social highlight this year for Eta Kappa Nu was the Formal Initiation Banquet held in December, at which 33 new members were initiated into the Society.

Activities over the past year have been in keeping with the objective of the honor society, that of bringing into closer union the outstanding electrical engineering students so as to foster a spirit of liberal culture in the Engineering College.

Included in its functions were the co-sponsorship with AIEE-IRE of a booth at Freshman Night, obtaining graduate school information for members, and others.

Alpha Pi Mu

Alpha Pi Mu is the newly formed Industrial Engineering honorary society. As with the other honorary engineering societies, membership is restricted to those students exhibiting excellence in scholarship as well as extracurricular activities.

Although a relatively new group, the society has exhibited enthusiasm and vigor in its activities, a reflection of the quality of the membership and a tribute to the society's officers.

Sitting: Prof. Freeman (advisor), P. Horrigan (corresponding sec.), H. Herman (pres.), J. Collins. Standing: P. Hemingway, F. Fennessy.

Sigma Society

Division A Sigma Society held weekly meetings at which the Fall Initiation and Banquet was planned and executed. The ceremonies started in the Chapel where nine new members were initiated. A banquet followed in the Wright Reading Room for the initiates and about sixty guests.

At the banquet two $100 scholarships to the Most Outstanding Freshmen in the Class of 1964, and one Honorable Mention Award were given.

Division B Sigma Society held two meetings in December and January in which officers for Division B were elected and plans for the May Initiation and Banquet were discussed.

W. Penney, J. Fitzgerald Jr.

Phi Alpha Theta

Northeastern's Zeta Tau chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, the history honor society, varied its past year's activities between films for regular members and initiations for new members. Such films as "The Senator Was Indiscreet," "The Private Life of Henry VIII," and the Nazi propaganda film, "The Triumph of the Will," were shown.

During December the Northeastern chapter sent delegates to the National Phi Alpha Theta convention in New York City.

Boston College was the place as the Northeastern chapter joined with other colleges in the area in initiating a new Phi Alpha Theta chapter at the Chestnut Hill campus.

Back home, the society held its own initiation of new members during January in the Omega Sigma Lounge.

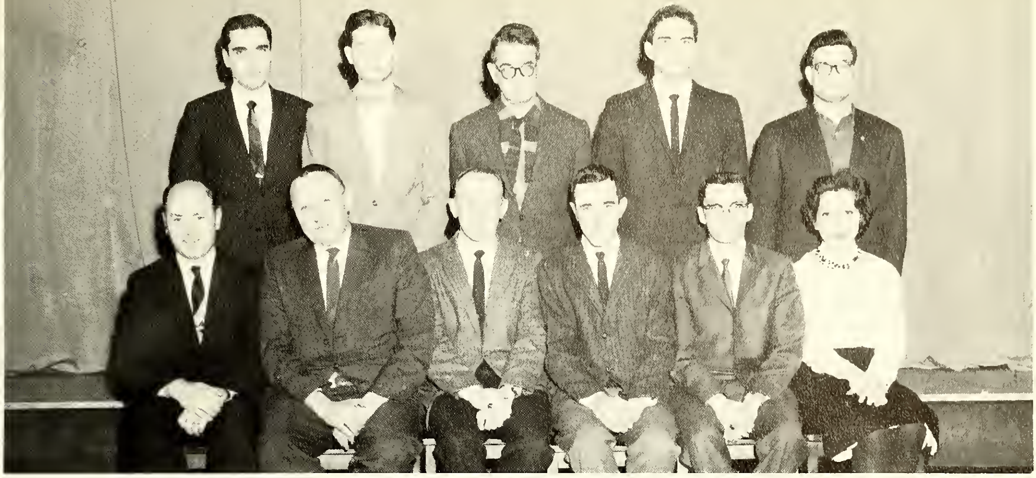
Sitting: R. Green (pres.), Dr. Marsh (advisor), S. Sherter (vice pres.). Standing: W. Dutczak, J. De Coste.

Kappa Iota Epsilon

Membership in Kappa Iota Epsilon is open to qualified men and women in the College of Education. Election is based upon integrity of character, scholarship, and interest in the extra-curricular activities of Northeastern.

In November, the annual banquet was held and the award to the outstanding freshman in the College of Education was presented. During April, trips were taken to various schools in the area to obtain a first hand observation of teaching techniques.

Other happenings during the year were a theatre party in the spring followed by an outing in May.



Sitting: Prof. Fullington, Prof. Rosenblatt (advisor), S. Sherter (pres.), J. De Coste (sec.), R. Green (historian), C. Baron. Standing: S. Sarkisian, Dr. Backstrom, Prof. Bishop, J. Keach Jr., R. McClellen.

Academy

Maintenance of at least a 3.00 average, inclusion in the top ten per cent of the class, and high character are the requirements for admission into the Academy, the liberal arts honor society.

Division B's group held their initiation of new members at a noontime ceremony during the school term. Division A members held their initiation in the Chapel at night, followed by a talk in the Mitton Lounge with underclassmen of high scholarship in attendance.

This year saw a change in the constitution of the Academy to the effect that officers will be elected in both divisions instead of one set covering both A and B. A further change was the decision to allow each division to elect its own members rather than to continue the practice of joint election.

A banquet was held in April for members of both divisions, and a $100 award was presented to the top liberal arts freshman.

FRATERNITIES are primarily a social brotherhood —University and community activities, athletics and scholarship round out their annual program.

Their ideals are high; their prejudices are none. Brothers are a cross section of all walks of life, drawn from all colleges and activity groups.

Fraternities seek a man to mold rather than a molded man; an interested man rather than an interesting man. "A song and a stein with a pretty girl and your brothers gather around you. . . ."

The brotherhood rests on its social life. From the giant stein filled with the University comes the communion of pride between brother and brotherhood, between the rare and the common, that stands all men equal and marks fraternities as a well-rounded and dominant force within the University.

Interfraternity Council

It was a busy year for all of Northeastern's ten fraternities.

Working through the Interfraternity Council, the Greeks kicked-off their social year with an IFC dance in October.

The Greeks combined with the Husky Key to make the first Greek Sing and Rally a sure-fire success. Nu Epsilon Zeta walked off with top honors in the songfest.

Attendance at football games was at a peak throughout the season, but the really big day came on Homecoming. The Greeks dominated the field at halftime, and Nu Epsilon Zeta picked up another winner's cup with its float, "Show Boat."

Alpha Kappa Sigma's "Around the World in Eighty Days" finished third, just behind Phi Beta Alpha's "The Bridge on the River Kwai." Other fraternities forgot their defeat in the many parties and banquets honoring returning alumni.

The softball season ended just as the snow began to fall. Gamma Phi Kappa put the grand winner's trophy on its mantel just under the pennant it won as the Division B champs. The Division A pennant was captured by Phi Alpha Rho.

Alpha Kappa Sigma pinned down the bowling trophy and Kappa Zeta Phi loved its way to the tennis award.

For the fifth consecutive year Phi Beta Alpha retained possession of the Scholastic Award Trophy.

The first Greek Ball was held in January and the first Interfraternity Night was sponsored by the IFC to give interested students a chance to talk to representatives of all fraternities at one general meeting.

PBA defeated PAR in the first interfraternity hockey game ever held at Northeastern, and NEZ won top honors in the Winter Carnival contest, while PAR had to content itself with second place.

It was, all in all, a year of many firsts for the Greeks. But it was also a year of learning. The two, together, made it a year to be remembered.

September rolled around and the brothers were welcomed back by a newly shingled green roof and a freshly painted white fraternity home, thanks to the Alumni Trustees.

We were all sorry to see Brother Joe Nordstrom resign his advisorship, but Prof. Daniel Scioletti graciously agreed to fill the vacant post and has done a fine job.

The football season was immediately upon us and AKS was represented at every game. At Homecoming our green and white, two piece, 20,000 napkin float "Around the World in 80 Days" caused much favorable comment. After the game, all returned home to a buffet prepared by our housemother, Mrs. Burris. Sunday everyone was entertained by a four piece jam session.

Christmas saw the house pillars decorated with holly and lights to welcome the neighborhood kids for the annual Yuletide party.

Not knowing what to do with all the snow, the brothers built a sculpture for the Winter Carnival at the Greenough Street address.

To end the year's major social activities was the Quint Frat formal held at the Blue Hills Country Club.

Even the home front wasn't safe from foreigners as a couple of members from other fraternities paid BGE's snow sculpture a visit.

In addition to hard study, the fraternity participated in several social events throughout the year.

For Homecoming Day BGE built a float for the homecoming football game ceremonies and held a party at the fraternity house that night.

Between terms in January an alumni dinner-dance was held in which both divisions of the fraternity met the alumni in a social highlight.

In the spring BGE and four other house fraternities at Northeastern held the Quint Frat formal.

Other activities that BGE participated in were Interfraternity Council softball and bowling competition, the Winter Carnival, and the Mayor of Huntington Avenue Contest.

Last year the brothers found some spare time to build a radio station for their own benefit, clobber an MIT fraternity in a snowball fight, entertain the Copley Square residents who were shoveling snow with music from an outdoor speaker (until it fell three stories to the sidewalk), embarrass the fraternity advisor, Prof. Phalen, with a playboy party, and shave the hair off the head of one brother who was desperate for ten dollars.

To tell about our fraternity's affairs, our good times, our community services, or any and all of our activities would only help to give a picture of any group, not our special fraternity. I say special, for we believe, as all members of each fraternity do, that ours is the special one on campus. We could never explain in words how fraternalism, good times, and work blend to give that unusual feeling that is peculiar to a brother of our fraternity, and missing to a member of just any organization.

In trying to relate how this feeling emanates from all who are brothers is like trying to explain the word loyalty. Such an abstract conception can only be felt, not read about. By now, if you have the feeling that fraternalism is something other than the ordinary, something different than the run of the mill, maybe in some way we have been able to give you an idea of what and how different each of our activities, which we purposely failed to mention, give that special something to each experience which marks our fraternity as something special.

"Show Boat"

Nineteen-sixty, as usual, was filled with success and enjoyment for the brothers of NEZ. The fraternity house was completely done over with aluminum siding. Also, several of the rooms in the house were redecorated by a group of artistic brothers.

Many successful house dances were held during the year. One of the main social functions was the annual Quint Frat formal.

On the sports scene, NEZ captured the trophy for softball for the 1959 season. This was presented at the annual IFC smoker held in June. Unfortunately the 1960 season was not as successful sportswise. The fraternity was edged out of both bowling and softball.

During the fall term of Division A, a Greek Sing was held in the school auditorium. This sing was won by the brothers of NEZ.

During that same term a Homecoming weekend set the scene for NEZ's float, "Show Boat." This float, along with the dixieland band on it, took first prize in the float contest. Homecoming weekend was also parents' weekend at NEZ.

Phi Alpha Rho

Proud possessors of the winning snow sculpture, "St. George and the Dragon."

All in all, it was an unbelievably successful year. On March 7, 1960, following two years of working, planning, and even praying, Phi Alpha Rho became the first fraternity to form at Northeastern in 35 years.

Her brothers unanimously chose Paul Fitzhenry as the fraternity's first president and the first pledge class began in late March.

Under her announced goals of campus leadership and active participation in the life of the University, Phi Alpha Rho became the first fraternity to win both the Mr. Husky contest and the Mayor of Huntington Avenue campaign in the same year. Bob Direng became Northeastern's second Mr. Husky while Brian Smith accepted the traditional top hat and tails from retiring mayor Joe Wells.

In class government, brothers of Phi Alpha Rho captured the presidency of the senior class and the Student Council. Seven brothers held seats in the Student Council, while three were elected to the class boards of '61 and '62.

Politics aside, the fraternity held two pledge classes in 1960-1961. Fifteen new brothers were elected to membership.

"Dumbo"

This year, SKP's 40th, was one long to be remembered by the '61 graduates.

With the coming of the Mayor of Huntington Avenue Contest, they will long remember Jerry Koss as King Koss-a-boo-boo. The campaign's climax was reached by the appearance of three live elephants in the Quadrangle as part of the King's entourage.

The entry of a white and red paper flower covered caricature of Dumbo, the flying elephant, was selected as the entry in the Homecoming Day's float contest. Although he didn't win first prize, Dumbo sure won approval as an outstanding job.

The graduates saw the fraternity's third annual essay contest again gain wide acclaim and approval.

In memory of Richard M. Horwitz, a brother lost in World War II, the annual scholarship dance was held. Highlighting the event was a special 40th anniversary edition of the SKP News, dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Horwitz, Dick's parents, who are themselves active in the fraternity.

As undergraduates, SKP's formal was the last fraternity affair for the '61 graduates.

THE sports season at Northeastern ranged from the heights of having an All-American hockey player to the depths of having another losing football season. Our football team was hurt by injuries and a quarterback problem. In two games they had victory in their grasp, but Dame Fortune looked the other way.

The basketball and hockey teams were hot and cold during the season. On some nights they were world beaters, while on other nights they looked as though a high school could have beaten them.

The Cross Country and Indoor Track teams both had successful seasons, especially the track team, which won the Greater Boston Conference Track Meet.

The rifle and ski teams, although minor sports, still have the best records of any athletic team in the University.

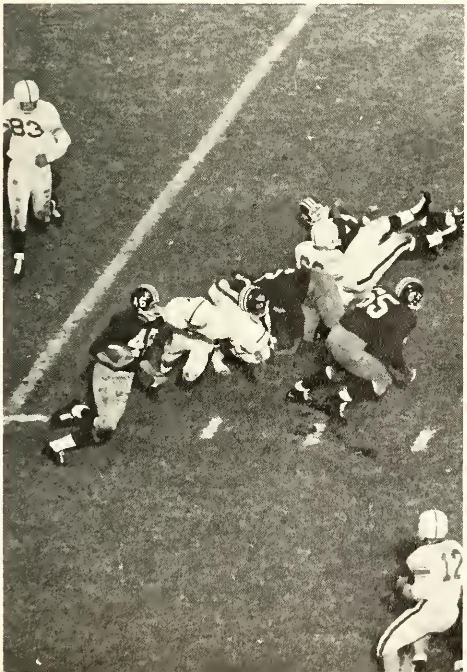
Football

Wide hole in the Husky defense.



The outlook for the 1960 football season had been dubious from the start, but little did we expect the disastrous record which befell our stalwarts.

The season opened on a warm, sunny day against the University of Rhode Island at Kingston.

We were in high spirits as we made our way toward the enemy campus. One of the members of our cavalcade just happened to be, by some strange coincidence, a full fledged ram-type mascot of said University.

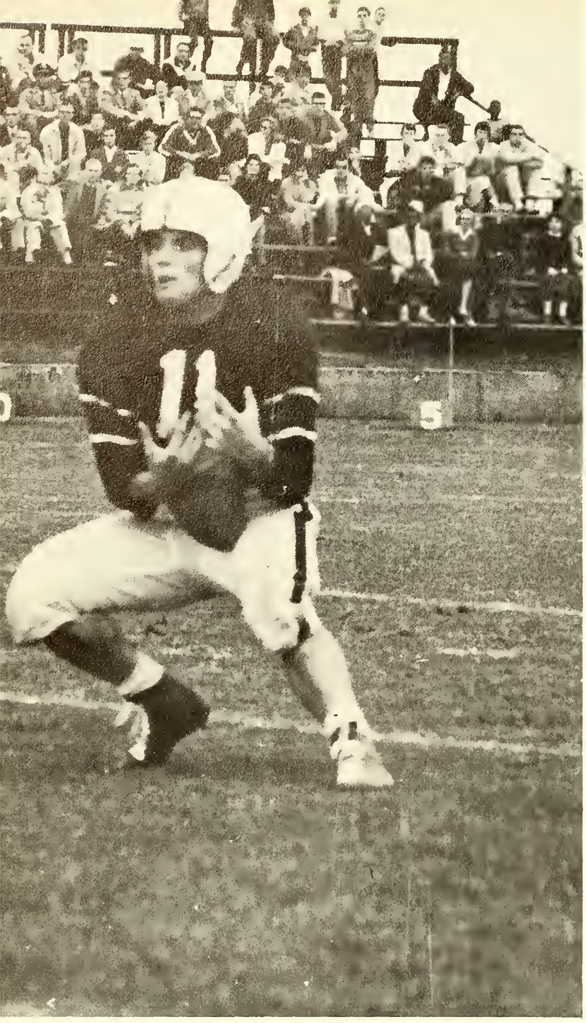
Our hopes were soon dashed in the soft turf of an unfriendly football field. When the game ended we found ourselves on the short end of a 20-0 score.

On top of it all, when our gay troupe and the ram-type mascot arrived at the field, we found that Rhody students had replaced their dear friend with another from their well-stocked barn and didn't even want the original back.

The fine line play of John Pignato and Ron Gaudet did give us some hope, but the all day mixup in our backfield, however, marked the beginning of the end for our hopes of a fine season.

One week later, with all the wounds of the Saturday before beginning to heal, we eagerly awaited our game with Cadets from Norwich University. This was a new addition to our schedule and our pride was given a needed boost when we left the field with a 24-0 decision.

Besides the appearance of a well co-ordinated football team on the field that day, the fans finally got their look at a full blooded, borrowed, Husky-type Northeastern mascot. Of course he was ably assisted by our HUMAN-type mascot in the furry suit.



Greased pigskin.

The entire defensive line played an outstanding game. Not only did they keep Norwich from crossing our goal line, but they also scored two touchdowns on an intercepted pass and a blocked kick.

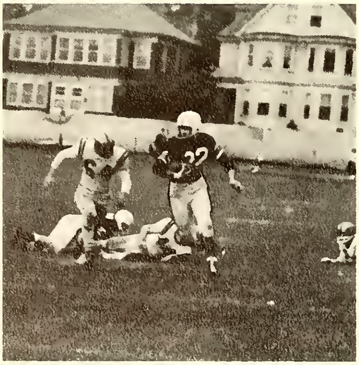
Our hopes were short-lived as the following Saturday rolled around. Things were back to normal as Northeastern dropped their second decision in three starts to the Purple Knights of the University of Bridgeport, 19-9.

Again it was the defense which turned in the only score. Sophomore tackle Denny Dugan blocked a punt, picked up the ball and raced into the end zone.

Our season might have taken an upward turn if we could have gotten by AIC the following week, but we didn't and dropped another one, 19-6.

Our next game found us in Springfield to play a favored varsity eleven to a scoreless tie.

The game nearly ended in a Hollywood type finish when, with two minutes to play, the Springfield quarterback was trapped in his own end zone. The officials did not see it this way and moved the ball to the one yard line. Those two points would have given us the victory.



Flaherty breaks in open.

"Get him, Oscar!"

Touchdown coming up.

Running the option play.

A perfect tackle.

We were by no means through with our troubles with officials. The following week found us on the campus of the University of Massachusetts for a game with the highly rated and then undefeated varsity eleven.

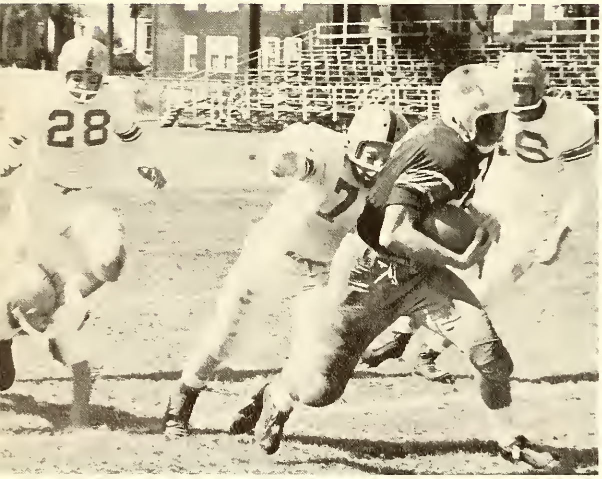
"We wuz robbed!" came the cry from the Northeastern fans after the game as the Huskies dropped a hard fought 7-0 decision.

Our feelings about the game were intensified during the week when the movies had been reviewed. To the coaches, the team and the students our apprehensions were upheld and that Friday the NEWS came out with a burning article on the officiating problem.

Soon, however, all was forgotten and we prepared for our next meeting with the University of Vermont at Burlington.

This was the renewal of an old grid feud and after three losses and a tie in our last four games, the boys were really up for this one as they walked off the field with a 22-8 victory.

"Drive! Drive!"

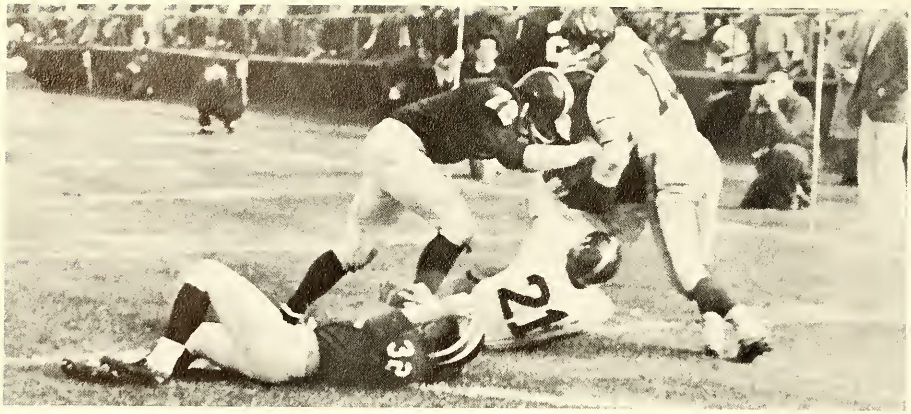


Surette lugging the ball.

Another Husky score.

McGonagle tripped up.

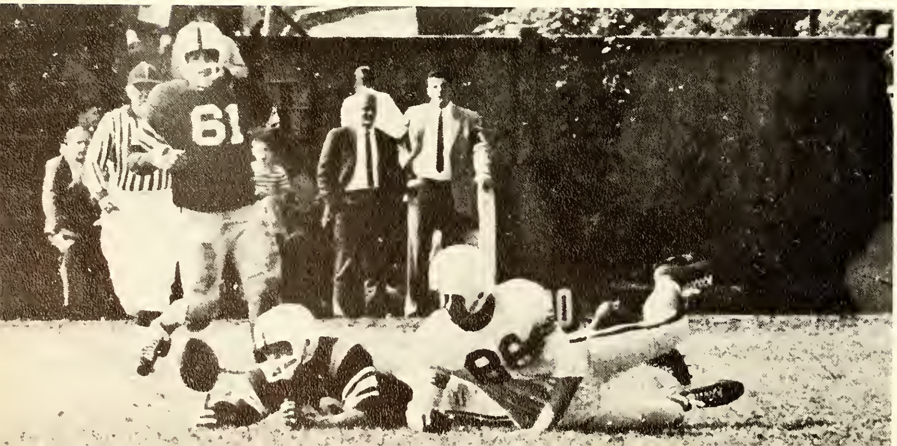
Hennessey pitching.



A helping hand.

"Roll me over in the clover."

"Come to papa."



"Where'd he go!"

Again it was the fine play of Oscar DiNino and the entire defensive line that enabled us to garner the victory. In that game Vermont was held to a MINUS 35 yards on the ground.

The final game of the season, and also Homecoming Day, was played against another newcomer to our schedule, Southern Connecticut State. It just was not our day as two floats burned, a student was injured, and the ballgame lost.

So as the final gun sounded on another football season, another team, and another academic term, once again we issued the old cry now made famous by the Boston Red Sox, "Wait'll next year!"

"Block that kick!"

This proves it.

This season, the varsity hockey team was regarded as one of the top Eastern squads in pre-season speculation.

The Huskies opened the schedule with a hard but decisive 4-0 victory over Yale at New Haven, Connecticut. Captain Art Chisholm, in his second year as the team's leader, led the Northeastern attack with three goals. This outburst brought Chisholm's record to nine goals in three season openers against the Bulldogs. Gerry Cronin also scored and picked up an assist for the Huskies.

John Bishop, sophomore goalie, recorded a shutout in his first varsity game.

Boston University became the second victim in a row for the Husky pucksters as they bowed by a 5-1 score. Jim McElholm and Larry Weissbach both scored two goals and Chisholm picked up one to swamp the Terriers. Goalie John Bishop again turned in a tremendous game as he repeatedly denied the BU offense from scoring.

Northeastern made it three straight as they outplayed a weak team from Brown University to the tune of 4-1. Chisholm scored his second "hat trick" in three games. Defenseman John Palmer also chipped in with his first goal of the season.

This impressive streak was snapped, however, when Harvard University dumped Northeastern by a score of 5-3. The Crimson players were fired up and outskated the Huskies throughout the contest.

The Princeton Tigers, by a one goal margin, 5-4, handed the Huskies its second straight defeat despite the strong efforts of Cronin and Weissbach. Cronin had a hand in all four Husky goals with one tally and three assists.

Again a one goal margin defeated the Huskies as the Mules from Colby edged Jimmy Bell's boys 4-3. Cronin, McElholm and Tom Casey scored for the Huskies, but it wasn't quite enough to turn the trick. Bishop stopped 31 Colby drives in the losing effort.

The Northeastern team was invited to play in the annual Christmas Tourney at the Boston Arena with Dalhousie Military Academy as their first opponent. The visitors from Nova Scotia out-powered the Huskies to win the game by a 10-2 score. The next night the Bellmen defeated the Bruins of Brown University 6-0 with Walter Vient scoring two goals and two assists. In the tourney's final night, Providence College crushed Northeastern 10-3 and captured the tourney title.

The Bellmen got on the winning track again when they upset the same Providence team 6-5 in over-time one week later. Dean Webb led the Husky scoring with other goals being registered by Chisholm, Vient, Weissbach, Dave Lynch and Bill Delaney. Delaney's goal came at 5:26 of the overtime period which enabled the Huskies to gain revenge on the Friars.

A long trip to New York was next in line for the Northeastern squad where the Huskies met Colgate University and West Point.

In the Colgate contest, the Huskies bombed the Red Raiders 9-3. Winger Gerry Cronin scored three goals for a "hat trick." All-American Art Chisholm scored two goals and Jim McElholm, Al Patrick, Tom Casey and Phil Johnston tallied one each.

At West Point, the Cadets shot down the flying Huskies 5-1. Chisholm scored the lone Northeastern goal. Bishop turned in a busy night as he was called upon to stop 31 Cadet drives.

The Wildcats from the University of New Hampshire were the next victims of the Huskies. The final score, 2-0, did not reflect the Bellmen's offense as the Wildcat net-minder made a total of 41 saves. Gerry Cronin and Ed Dutczak scored the Northeastern goals. Bishop had little difficulty in registering his third shutout of the season.

Dartmouth College's Indians dropped a 6-3 decision to the Huskies, who came from behind three times in the game to finally pull it out. Ron Gaudet notched his first collegiate goal in the final minutes of the game. Chisholm scored three goals to lead the attack. Dean Webb and Tom Casey netted the remaining goals for the Huskies. Bishop turned in one of his finest performances of the year to aid in the win.

The Huskies made another extensive trip in which they came out on the short end of an 8-7 decision to Norwich University. Chisholm produced his highest point total this season as he scored five goals and one assist in a losing cause.

On the same trip, Middlebury College handed the Huskies its second defeat in two nights as they outscored Northeastern 6-1. Wayne Spence, sophomore defenseman, scored the lone Northeastern tally. Panther ace, Phil Latreille, also an All-American, was held scoreless for the first time in 38 games by the goaltending of Bishop and John Wilson.

At this point in the season, the Huskies have an eight win, eight loss record. Chisholm, Cronin and Weissbach are still one of the best scoring lines in the East. So far, Chisholm has brought his total points to over 150 for his college career and Coach Bell figures on winding up the season with a strong winning record.

Basketball

With the season half over, the Northeastern basketball team has suffered the same fate as last year, that is, losing close ones.

The Huskies have lost one game by one point, one by two points and a third by five points. Wins in these contests would have put Northeastern near the top in the New England basketball circle.

The Husky five started the season off with an impressive 63-52 win over AIC, a team that had held an eight year winning streak over Northeastern.

Trailing 17-4 after seven minutes of play, the Huskies made a great recovery to whittle the Aces lead to only three points at halftime. Northeastern was not to be denied, and after 13 minutes of the second half they had moved out in front 48-38 by virtue of a great defensive effort, allowing the Aces only seven points over that stretch.

Pete Ducey, 6'2" forward, was the top man in the Huskies second contest against MIT. Pete scored 23 points in a losing effort as the Huskies, after giving up an early 8-0 lead, dropped a tight 71-66 decision to the Engineers.

Returning home for their first contest at Cabot Gym, the Northeastern five, despite the loss of Captain Bill Vierstra, who injured his knee early in the game, turned back the Purple Knights of Bridgeport, 89-76.

Northeastern provided the home fans with a thrilling finish to the game. After relinquishing a nine point lead and allowing Bridgeport to pull within one point of them, the Huskies, behind the rebounding of Bob Giordano, who also chipped in two baskets, stifled the Bridgeport threat.

The Huskies grabbed off their third win of the early season by dumping the University of Hartford, 73-58.

Trailing 37-33 at the half, Northeastern came back with a tremendous second half surge to go ahead by as much as 20 points, 73-53, with less than two minutes left in the game.

Pete Ducey was again the scoring star, chipping in 20 points, 14 of them in the first half. Ducey was helped out by Paul Solberg, Bob Giordano and Captain Bill Vierstra who scored 17, 10 and 10, respectively.

In their next contest against the Redmen of the University of Massachusetts, the Huskies were supposed to be an easy mark. Many said they were playing out of their class, and maybe they were, but you'll never get the Redmen to admit it since they barely squeeked by with a 71 to 70 overtime win.

UMass pulled ahead by seven points in the last quarter, but the Huskies rallied to tie the game 68 all at the end of regulation play. UMass managed to pull it out only after both teams, obviously tense in the overtime, missed many easy shots.

The Hoopsters got back in the win column as they turned back City College of New York 74-53 to post their fourth win against one loss.

Brown splits the defense.

Pete Ducey led the scoring again, sending six field goals and eight foul shots through the strings for a total of 20 points, while the Huskies were never threatened in the win, leading by as much as 18 points in the second half.

Tufts University stopped the Huskies setting them back 69-67, to give the Huskies their second losing decision in a week.

This defeat was attributed to their cold shooting at the foul line where they could only connect on 17 of 34 attempts. Tufts, trailing most of the game, went ahead 64-61 with two and half minutes left in the game and never lost this lead.

In their next game the Husky five traveled to Worcester where they were beaten 79-69 by Clark University. Pete Ducey, the team's high scorer, led Northeastern's faltering attack with 19 points.

Northeastern bounced back with an easy 71-47 decision over Worcester Tech. The outcome of the contest was never in doubt as the Huskies played well on both offense and defense. Ward Sears and Bob Giordano were the standout defensive performers, grabbing a total of 30 rebounds between them.

Despite this fair showing, the Huskies should end up with a winning record if they continue to improve with each game. They have the shooters in Ducey and Solburg, and the rebounders in Sears and Vierstra to have at least a winning record this season.

Cross Country

The varsity cross country team, led all season by the outstanding performances of Captain Joe Abelon, rolled across hills and dales to wind up with a seven and two record.

Completing the most successful season in six years, coach Gerry Tatton's team showed excellent balance, especially from the top six men.

The Huskies lost only to the University of Maine and University of Massachusetts in the second meet of the season.

In the season's opener Northeastern met highly favored New Hampshire at Durham. New Hampshire was considered to be one of the top five teams in New England. They had finished fourth in the 1959 New England championships, and had their outstanding Yankee Conference cross country champ Doug MacGregor returning.

Northeastern had pointed for this encounter all summer, however, and turned in a tremendous effort for a slight 27 to 29 victory. Joe Abelon led the win by pinning an upset on favored MacGregor. Joe trailed the New Hampshire captain for three miles, but had the race under control all the time. When he made his decisive bid in the final mile, he eased past MacGregor and opened up a 50 yard lead which he held to the finish. Not far behind in third place came middler Chico Parillo, showing tremendous improvement over last season. Parillo had stayed with Abelon and MacGregor for the first half of the race, but stomach cramps forced him to drop off the pace. Chico hung on, however, and easily captured third place.

Still elated over their opening meet upset, the harriers suffered their only let down of the season the following week as they dropped a 31 to 32 to 60 decision to the University of Maine and University of Massachusetts at Franklin Park.

The Huskies, although running under par, did not lose face by being beaten by these two New England powerhouses, since Maine was defending New England champion, and UMass went on to become Yankee Conference champs and New England runnerups.

The race was won by Maine's Mike Kimball after a close duel with Massachusetts' Dave Balch. The first Husky finishers were Abelon and Parillo, placing seventh and eighth. Northeastern was just not up for this race, and it showed before the race was half over. The Huskies fell back quickly and never recovered.

Another hairline decision came about the next week as Northeastern eked out a 27 to 28 win over the University of Rhode Island at Kingston, R. I.

Joe Abelon returned to his opening meet form and proceeded to run away from Rhode Island's outstanding sophomore star Bob Lund. Abelon won by more than 200 yards and set a new course record in the process.

Joe covered the hilly five mile 385 yard course in 28:13 to break the record set two years earlier by another Northeastern runner, Tom Thomasian.

Lund held off a strong finish by Dave Kneeland to preserve second place. Kneeland showed great conditioning and ambling over the hills and would probably have caught Lund if the race was any longer. Chico Parillo, after setting the early pace, dropped back to sixth place midway through the run but recovered in time to come back and finish fourth.

Rhode Island captured the next four positions making it necessary for the Huskies to take the following three spots for victory. Ward Taylor, Paul Woodland and the rapidly improving Joe Bolton met the challenge and preserved the win for Northeastern.

A sweep of the first five positions resulted in a Northeastern romp over Worcester Tech at Franklin Park in the fourth meet of the season.

Chico Parillo won his first race of the year in leading team mates Dave Kneeland, Ward Taylor, Paul Woodland and Joe Abelon across the line. Joe Bolton placed seventh, behind Tech's first finisher as Northeastern won by a 15 to 48 count. The outcome of this race was inevitable after the first 600 yards, as a flock of red shirts shot to the front. Northeastern had the first ten places at the mile mark as Worcester Tech was hopelessly outclassed.

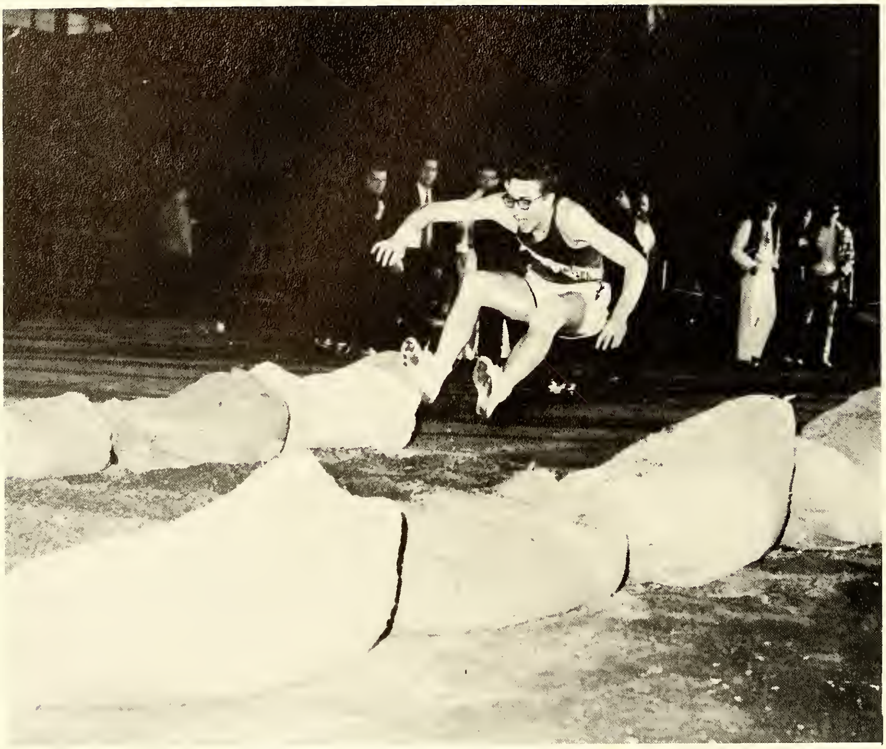
Joe Abelon met his second tough challenge of the season as the Huskies swept to victory at Franklin Park over the Coast Guard Academy and MIT in a triangular meet.

Abelon and Ed Brady battled the entire four miles, but the Husky captain had too much for his competent rival at the finish.

Parillo, Woodland, Kneeland, Taylor and Bolton all finished in the first ten as the Huskies totaled 24 points to 45 for the Coast Guard and 57 for MIT.

The Huskies wrapped up the regular season with an easy 18 to 48 to 64 win over MIT and Tufts at Franklin Park. Chico Parillo became a winner for the second time this season when he edged team mate Abelon in the final 50 yards.

Captain Joe Abelon leads the pack.



Willie Anderson straining for that extra inch.

The varsity track team picked up where the cross country team left off by sweeping to three straight wins to open the indoor season.

The Huskies showed that they have one of the strongest teams to represent Northeastern in six years when they opened the season by crushing Tufts and MIT in a triangular meet at the Northeastern cage.

Northeastern rolled up 73 points, with eight individual victories, to Tufts' 44½ and MIT's 22½.

A pair of middlers, Bill Lytle and Chico Parillo, personally spoiled any chance Tufts and MIT may have had by winning three events each for a total of 30 points between them.

Lytle swept to victory in both the high and low hurdles and the broad jump. The Dorchester resident, facing probably his toughest competition of the season in Tufts' Dave Thompson and MIT's Joe Davis, had everything under control and showed that he would have to be reckoned with in New England track circles before the season was over.

The low hurdles saw Lytle nip Jim Banks at the tape as Northeastern grabbed the first two places. Bill's time of 5.7 seconds was excellent for so early in the season.

The second meet saw Northeastern snap a six year losing streak to Bates. The Huskies pinned a 61 to 47 loss on Bates in a meet at Lewiston, Maine.

Once again the hurdlers proved to be the outstanding performers of the meet as Lytle and Banks took one-two in both hurdling events.

Northeastern finally got help from the weight men, a thing the Huskies had lacked the past four years. The weight team of Joe Donahue, Buzz Krastin, Keith Lidback, Don LeBlanc and Al Brown swept all 18 points in the 35 lb. weight throw and the shot put.

Donahue captured the weight throw with a heave of 48' 10" and Krastin was victorious in the put at 41' 7".

Chico Parillo again came through in the mile as he handed Schuyler of Bates his first defeat of the season.

Dave Kneeland edged Joe Abelon in the two-mile run as they both lapped the field.

Northeastern routed the University of New Hampshire in the third meet of the season with an 87 to 20 win.

Parillo, returning from an excellent cross country season, put on an iron man performance in capturing the three longest races of the meet. Chico ran away from all opposition in winning the mile, the two-mile and the 1000 yard run.

In the mile he led a Northeastern sweep as Paul Woodland was second and captain Joe Abelon third.

With less than twenty minutes rest he returned to pace another Northeastern sweep in the two-mile by leading Dave Kneeland and Abelon across the wire.

Northeastern's tremendous distance runners kept the heat on by sweeping their third event of the day when Parillo captured the 1000 yard run ahead of team mates Ron Dean and Woodland.

Not to be overshadowed by the performances of Lytle and Parillo, high jumper Willy Anderson added color to the meet by breaking the Cage high jump record with a 6' 4" jump.

Other strong performances turned in by Northeastern came from Frank Lynch's tie in the pole vault at 11' 6"; Northeastern's 600-yarders placing second, third and fourth, and Ed Hayward's second place in the dash.

Bill Lytle was the only double winner of the meet in capturing the broad jump and the high hurdles. Lytle emerged as high scorer of the meet with 16 points as he also placed second behind other Northeastern runners in the low hurdles and dash.

Jim Banks, trailing Lytle all season, finally came through to upset his team mate with a hairline decision in the low hurdles. Jim also took seconds in the high hurdles and the high jump.

Joe Donahue set a Northeastern record in winning the 35 lb. weight throw with a heave of 51′ 11¼″.

Chico Parillo finally took things easy and ran only one race, the mile, which he easily won from Northeastern runners Abelon and Woodland.

Other first places were turned in by Ed Hayward in the dash, Buzz Krastin in the shot put, Dave Kneeland in the two-mile, Will Anderson in the high jump, Frank Lynch in the pole vault, Ron Dean in the 1000 yard run and the relay team of Woodland, Abelon, Joe Bolton and Jack Frisch.

Frank Lynch took the pole vault with a jump of 12 ft. 3 in., the highest of his career.

Coach Jerry Tatton was extremely pleased with the 1961 track team. The team jelled quicker than expected and proved to be a balanced outfit.

Losing the services of Captain Joe Abelon, Will Anderson and Jim Banks through graduation will hurt the team of course, but Coach Tatton feels that the replacements he will receive from his undefeated Freshman squad will make next year's team just as successful.

Baseball

Because of the early press deadline, the 1961 baseball season had to be omitted from the yearbook.

Last year's team, which finished third in the Greater Boston League, will graduate seven of its starting nine players.

The biggest surprise of the season was Tony LaRosa, a sophomore shortstop who won a berth on the GBL All-Star team with his fine hitting and fielding.

Fleet Ferdie Beckette, a centerfielder, and Warren Mayhew, a pitcher, were also named on the first team. With only two starters returning, Coach "Tinker" Connelly may have some headaches before the season is over.

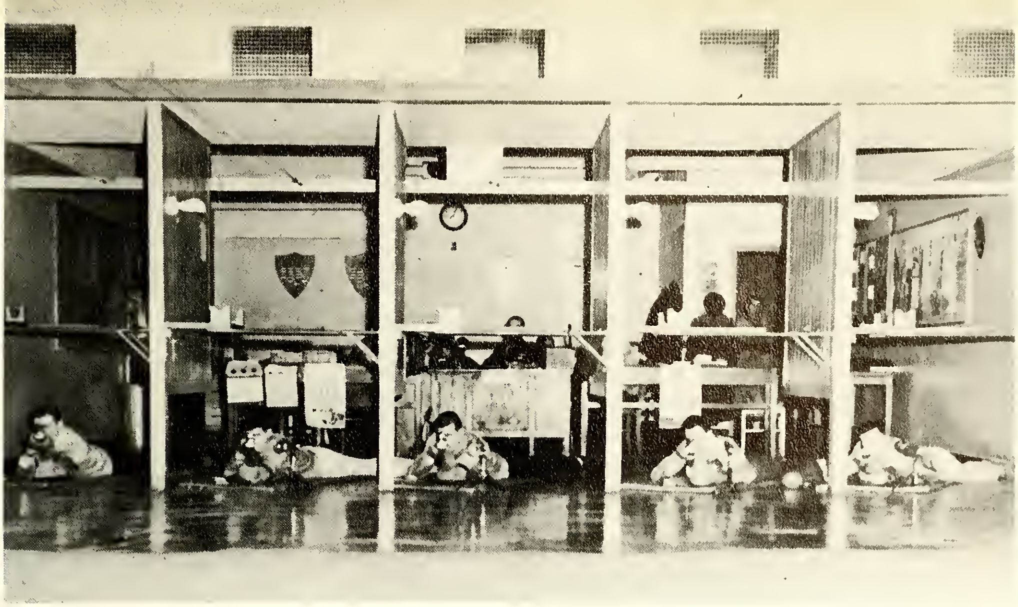
Rifle Team



Any last words?

Again, as in past years, the Rifle Team has compiled the best win-lost record in the Northeastern athletic program.

They posted 41 wins against one loss in regular season matches, with the lone defeat coming at the hands of West Point.

In postal matches, they outshot 39 opponents while losing only two contests.

It was in tournament matches that the riflemen really shone. In the National Match they finished fifth, the highest ranking that the team has ever held.

They came in first in the New England College Rifle League; first in the Greater Boston Rifle League, going undefeated for the third year in a row in this League, and first in the Massachusetts Jewish War Veterans Match for the fourth consecutive year.

Norwich University proved to be a thorn in the sharpshooters' side as they edged out Northeastern in the 13th Corps Match and the 1st Army Area Match, after the Huskies had previously outshot them on two occasions.

With only two seniors, Art Smith and Shaun Flanagan, graduating, and a freshman team that is firing almost as well as the varsity, the future should hold bigger and better titles for the Rifle Team.

Rex Morey, top point man for the Northeastern ski team, is caught by the camera running a fast giant slalom course.

Relaxing after the giant slalom race at Cranmore Mt., North Conway, N. H., are Bill Simoneau, Barry Harris (captain), Jack Huber, and Mark Standley.

The Northeastern Ski Team finished second behind MIT for the second year in a row in the New England Intercollegiate Ski Conference.

In their first meet at Cranmore Mt. the skiers finished second behind MIT, although they had four men in the top ten finishers.

The second meet was a two day competition at Killington Basin for the Walter Foley Trophy. The skiers finished second in the slalom on Saturday and fifth in the Downhill on Sunday.

In their second two day meet of the season, held at Dartmouth Skiway and Suicide Six, the snow runners finished third behind MIT and New England College on Saturday, and in their own sponsored meet, the Asa Osborne Race, they finished second behind nemesis MIT.

Jim Bagley, Barry Harris and Mark Standley were top finishers in the NEC slalom at Mt. Sunapee, to find themselves behind the engineers on the Charles.

The skiers were frustrated for the umpteenth time by MIT in the last race of the season held at Belknap Mt. Mark Standley, who placed third, and Jim Bagley, seventh, were the top men for Northeastern.

Members of the Ski team are: Rex Morey, Mark Standley, Jim Bagley, Barry Harris, Fred Sawin, Foster Chandler, Bill Simoneau, Tom Dungan, Tom Pittendriegh, Jack Huber and Dave Driscoll.

TOM MITCHELL, the 1960 football captain, was one of the many that suffered injuries during the season. Used mainly as a defensive end, Tom was the best tackler on the team. He was a starting end in every game since his sophomore year except those which he had to sit out because of injuries.

Tom's misfortune continued on right up into his senior year when, because of injuries, he missed most of the season. Over the years Tom has shown great determination and drive on the football field as he bounced back from the numerous injuries to always give his best to the game.

A Tribute to

PAUL CALLOE, captain of the 1960 basketball team, was considered by most of the New England coaches as one of the best defensive players in the area. He was always assigned to the top scorer of the opposing team, and it was not unusual to find that this player did not hit double figures for his night's effort.

Paul was no slouch in the scoring department either. He was the second highest scorer on the team in both his junior and senior years. He was called one of the best all around players that Northeastern has had in a long time by Coach Dukeshire.

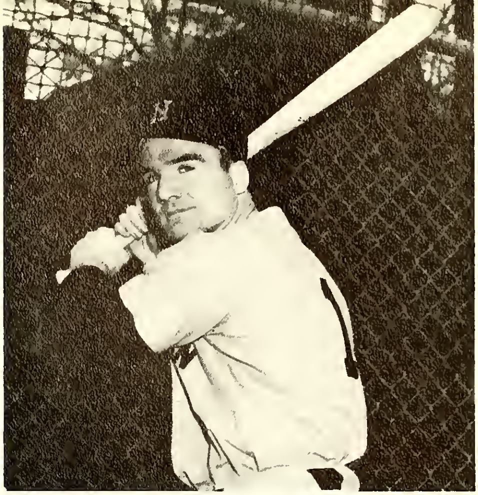
DICK LUCAS, captain of the 1960 indoor track team, is shown flying through the air with the greatest of ease in his specialty, the running broad jump. Dick jumped consistently over 20 feet and could be counted to bring home the bacon in every meet.

He was also a high jumper and good enough to win points in most of the meets.

When the chips were down, Dick was at his best. His last jumps were always the longest or the highest; pressure meant nothing to him.

JOE MULKERIAN was a surehanded, goodfielding shortstop, who used his speed effectively. He could cover a wide range of territory and had a good arm, necessary to make the long throw from deep short. He was labeled as a banjo hitter, but he kept his batting average around .300 while in a Husky uniform.

Besides playing baseball, Joe was the type of basketball player that any coach would like on his team. Although he was short for a basketball player, Joe had the extra drive which made him a ball hawk. He was particularly effective on fast breaks and full court presses.



Graduating Athletes

PETE HEMINGWAY was another two sport man at Northeastern. Football and basketball were Pete's claim to fame in the athletic world.

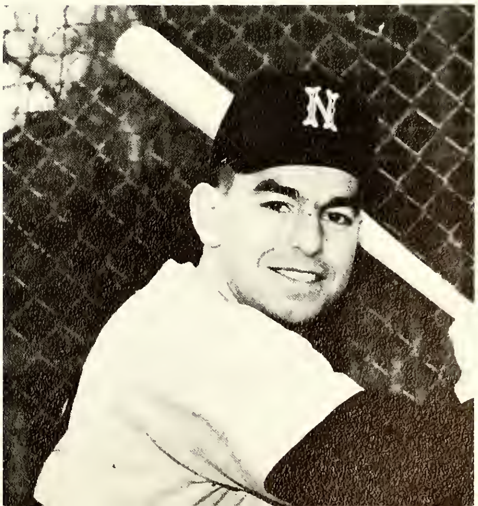
In football, Pete used his 6′5″ frame to great use at the end position. His height and long arms were advantages in hauling down passes. He was a tough man to block out of a play, and those long arms helped him make extra tackles.

In basketball, Pete was known more for his defensive abilities than his scoring. He was a good rebounder and was a master at blocking opponents' shots. He usually chipped in six or eight points a game, showing that he was not purely a defensive player.

HARRY KRESHPANE was also a two sport man for the Huskies. He played on both the basketball and baseball teams.

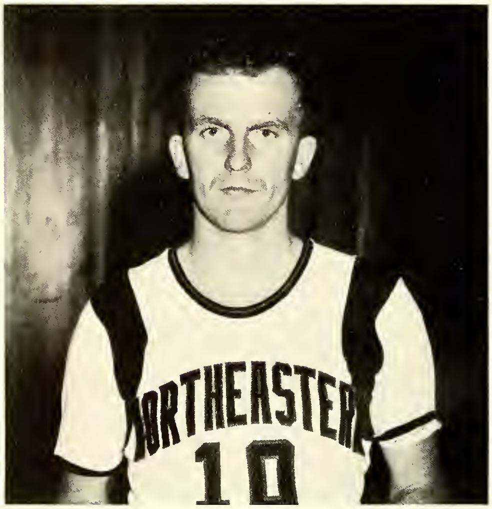
Although Harry was not a first stringer, he was the man who kept the basketeers on their toes during the games. A morale booster with his constant chatter and encouragement to his fellow players, Harry also had a soft left handed jump shot that scored well for him.

In baseball, Harry was a regular outfielder and filled in at first base when needed. His clutch in late inning hitting saved many games for the Husky nine.



VIN APPRUZZESSE was a hard driving guard on the football team. He was one of the iron men of the team, having missed very few minutes of football during his varsity career. Vin had a part-time job while in school and had to make great personal sacrifice to play the game at Northeastern.

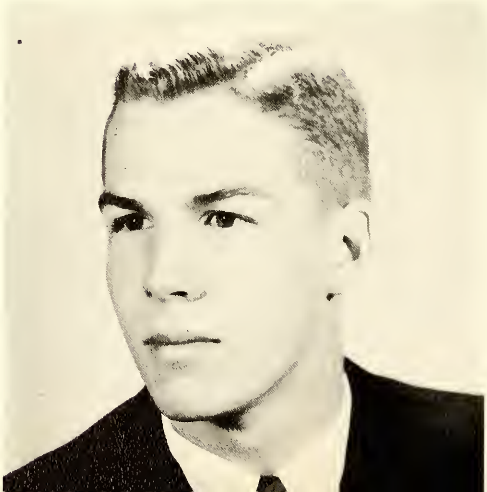
Vin devoted much of his off time after finishing his varsity career to coaching football in the Pop Warner League in his home town of Everett, Mass., where he starred for three years on the varsity football team. At Northeastern he is a student in the school of Business Administration.



DICK BROWN, one of the main cogs on last year's basketball team, was the team's playmaker. He could dribble, shoot, pass and, most important, had the desire to win.

His main characteristic was putting his tongue in his cheek, making him look like he was chewing a plug of tobacco. His soft jump shot was deadly, and his two-handed driving lay-up was a thing of beauty to watch.

Dick was a member of the Class A Prep School Championship team at Huntington Prep, and returned there this year to coach the team.



LEE SCHUSTER was a dedicated track man who had never come in first until his last meet. Lee's specialty was the broad jump, and it seemed that he always placed second to team mate Dick Lucas. Winning that broad jump in his final meet was his biggest sports thrill at Northeastern.

Lee also scored points in the high jump and the middle distance runs.

Since track was his first love, Lee had to give up basketball. He had the height and hustle to make the varsity, but he only played intramural and fraternity basketball.

JOHNNY ALLEN, "Mr. Desire," was a scatback on the football team. Although he was always in the best of condition, John was hampered by injuries for the better part of his last two seasons.

John is best remembered for his patented Indian war whoops upon coming out of the huddle or in his familiar flanker position.

Although small in stature, 5′8″, John was the type of runner who put his head down and plowed through would-be tacklers. He was also a good defensive back. His bone shattering tackles would make the fans feel glad that they weren't on the receiving end of them.

FERDIE BECKETTE was outstanding in baseball and football. Fleet Ferdie lived up to his nickname as he covered the pastures of center field. Any fly ball in his vicinity was a sure out. He was twice named to the Greater Boston League All-Star team. Last year he led the league in hitting with a better than .400 average.

In football, Ferdie put his speed to great use, as he was practically unstoppable once he got beyond the line of scrimmage. His ability to cut and weave eluded him from many would-be tacklers during the season.

JIM HENNESSEY was perhaps the finest passer in the history of Northeastern football teams. The tall, lanky southpaw, given protection, could thread a needle with his passes.

Besides being a powerful offensive threat, Jim was also a strong man on defense. He was a master at deflecting opponents' passes and was a sure tackler.

His junior year proved to be his toughest season as five of the eight games on the schedule were either played in the rain or on wet fields.

THE Reserve Officers' Training Corps of the United States Army exists for the purpose of developing officers—leaders of men. The mission of the ROTC is to have ready in time of national emergency a corps of educated, trained leaders for our nation. The result of enrollment in ROTC at Northeastern is a commission as a second lieutenant in the U. S. Army Reserve or the Regular Army.

The greatest benefit to the individual from ROTC training is its development of leadership qualities. No matter what career the graduate follows—business, professional, the social fields—the ability to organize and direct the activities of others is essential.

The activities of the ROTC at Northeastern naturally tend toward the military, and include drill, parades, weekend bivouacs, classes in Army procedures, and summer camp, which is the last step before commissioning.

SCABBARD AND BLADE

Company H, 11th Regiment, the Northeastern chapter of Scabbard and Blade, is a cadet officers' honorary society for advanced course students.

Highlighting its events of the year were the sponsorship of the annual Military Ball in February and of the lecture at the University in December by Dr. Wernher von Braun.

Other activities included the initiation of new and honorary members, the annual Fall Banquet, a weekend Bivouac at Fort Devens in October, the presentation of the company to Col. John D. Evans Jr., the new PMS, and the presentation of four $125 scholarships to deserving junior cadets.

PERSHING RIFLES

Pershing Rifles opened its activity-filled year with an exhibition of trick drill at Freshman Night in August. This was followed by a smoker, hay ride, Columbus Day parade, and the observance of General Pershing Day.

In November PR cadets had the pleasant duty of acting as escorts at a fashion show sponsored by Chandler's School for Women.

The presentation of the Company to Col. Evans, a Parents Night, a trick drill exhibition at Shopper's World in Framingham, and a weekend bivouac completed the events for November.

A pledge dance and pledge problem in December were followed by the Initiation Dance in January.

Participation in the Homecoming Float contest and the Winter Carnival snow sculpture contest enabled the cadets to exhibit some of their non-military talents.

An exhibition at the Military Ball in February, drill competition at the U. S. Coast Guard Academy, and participation in the 12th Regimental Drill Meet in April ended up the year's activities.

The Brigade Staff

DRILL—FORT DEVENS

NORTHEASTERN UNIVERSITY

"Brace up, Mister!"

The long green line wound from the Greenleaf building to the Fens. The parking lot looked like a sea of soldiers. The air was rent with cries of "Forward, March! Column left, March! and Company, Halt!" Traffic around the area was tied up for miles, as another Brigade Drill was underway.

Rapidly, the line filled the stadium on the Fenway. The chaos of moving masses of men quickly began to assume a pattern of platoons, companies, and battle groups. The student officers began the day's instructions and the men listened attentively as the movement, "Right flank, March!" was explained.

Then the fun began. Platoon drill was always a beautiful sight to see, as one unit charged head-on into another and rifles, hats and bodies were left in the wake. The glowing red color on the faces of the Cadre indicated their appreciation of these "military" maneuvers. Commands were screamed, and the most common injury was apoplexy. Men were left to stand at strict attention in the hot sun, and the line at the infirmary grew longer and longer.

Then miraculously, the drill period was over. The long green line wound back into the parking lot and the sea of green broke over the campus, inundating the Commons, the Library, and the MTA. It had been a good drill day. No rifles were lost and every cadet was accounted for. Everyone was looking forward to the next drill and another episode in the "Battle of the Fens."

In addition to the weekly drill periods, cadets periodically enjoyed themselves on weekend bivouacs at Fort Devens. These student soirees were preludes to summer camp, and most will attest that the training was quite realistic.

The orders of the day on a Devens trip included bunk-making, firing the M-1, a dose of the Daily Dozen, and a short walk through a wet swamp in the dark.

Sleep was something to look forward to, but there never seemed to be enough time for it, so a nap did for a night's sleep and a yawn was equivalent to a nap.

Among the things learned by the cadets participating was the feel, sound, and smell of an M-1 rifle, as well as the comfort and convenience of an Army "bus"—a 2½-ton truck to civilians.

But the memory of ROTC lingers on after these things are gone, and to most they are pleasant: a smashed thumb from a rifle, corns from ill-fitting shoes, and C's in ROTC courses that kept you off the Dean's List. These may not be the things that made ROTC worth taking, but those gold bars on your uniform and that paper making you a "gentleman by Act of Congress" are.

"The Battle of the Fens"

IT was a long grind. 35 weeks of straight school, then four years of work and study, study and work, with perennial one week vacations thrown in.

We began our careers unknowing quite what we would do, unknowing in which direction we would cultivate our development.

We fought the elements, co-op, and exams. Sometimes we lost, sometimes we won, but we kept on. And then something happened.

The classes had passed, co-op had passed, and we found that it was all over. But now we had a new vision, a new perspective on where we were going.

WE may have thumbed our noses at them behind their backs, we may have fallen asleep in their classes, or we may have fought them, but we respected them.

At times we rebelled against their teachings, resented the authoritative command they assumed, but more often we accepted what they offered us.

They were a different lot, this Northeastern faculty. They belied the stiff and pompous image of the college professor. They walked through the corridors with us and bridged the gap between instructor and student.

And they fired our minds.
